Mercury Tumbles To 40 As Humboldt's Cold Days Arrive

These are, in case you didn't know it, Humboldt's cold days of May.

Today is, last night was, and tomorrow is going to be. Maybe Wednesday, too.

You'll admit it's cold, won't you when the mercury gets down to 40, as it was early today?

It seems that there's a cold spell, sometimes lasting four days, every May, right about this time, or somewhere between the 7th and 17th. It was Baron Alexander Von Humboldt (1769-1859) a German scientist, who first reported the phenomenon of an annual May cold spell

In Mansfield perhaps no one has watched Humboldt's cold days closer than Philip Wolfe, former state senator and one-time newspaperman. He says we've had them every year without fail, about the same time

Temperatures skidded to 47 Sunday night, after a heavy rain, measuring two-tenths of an inch, went to 40 early today, and had risen only to 50 at noon. The forecast said "continued cool tonight and Tuesday."

Fund Workers Get 'Go' Signal Tonight

DINNER SERVES AS 'KICK-OFF' FOR CAMPAIGN

Majors of 11 Divisions and Aids Gather at First M. E. for Final Conference.

SEE STIFF FIGHT AHEAD

Director of Goodwill Charities at Cleveland to Supply Inspiration.

Admittedly facing one of the stiffest campaigns in years, leaders and workers in the 1938 Community Fund drive hold their opening dinner conference tonight at First Methodist Episcopal church.

Majors of the 11 divisions into which the city has been divided, their captains and solicitors will gather this evening with General Chairman Arthur S. Hughes for last minute conferences.

Rev. Frank Baker, director of the Goodwill Charities of Cleveland, will be the principal speaker, supplying the necessary inspiration to workers to go into the campaign with a do-or-die spirit. About 200 workers are expected to attend the dinner, which is set for 6:30 p. m

Goal Is $58,950.

Tomorrow morning more than 350 volunteer workers, men and women interested in Mansfield's progress, will form a network over the city; contacting every adult in a determined drive to raise $53,950 for the maintenance of Mansfield's welfare and character building agencies for another year.

"We aren't going into this drive blindfolded," Hughes said today. "The going will be tough and no one knows it any better than the divisional majors who have accepted their quotas. There are several thousand fewer employed persons in Mansfield industries this year than last year, which means that the employed persons must give more than they have in the past. But with the right spirit I think we can make it."

Industry Quota Half Total.

A quota has been set up for each of the 11 divisions. Almost 50 per cent of the entire budget has been

Obstacles Fail To Daunt Lovers In New Serial Story

It was love at first sight for Hiliary Lane and Clayton Odell, but first sight needed foresight, and ahead loomed only despair for controlling both their destinies was a hard-hearted employer and Odell's uncle, all rolled into one.

Hiliary and Clayton have to hurdle a lot of obstacles in Joseph McCord's latest serial, "One Shoe Off," which starts tomorrow in The News-Journal, before they are able to straighten out their lives.

Clayton, just out of college, thought he was getting a break when his uncle, Romulus Wardlaw, owner of a large hosiery mill, gave him complete charge of setting up a new accounting system—but he forgot that when Wardlaw wanted something done, he wanted it his way, or not at all.

Even when Wardlaw promptly fired Hiliary, the pretty file clerk, whom Clayton hired as his new asistant, it failed to break up the young couple. Finally the uncle went to the girl's parents in his fight to keep the two apart.

How they finally bring the hosiery king to terms—but wait for the first chapters of the new serial in tomorrow's News-Journal.

Eye Removed To Save Baby

A "jury" of 10 specialists in Chicago today decided that it would be best to remove one of baby Helaine Colan's eyes leaving her to an almost certain future of blindness but preventing her death from a malignant tumor. Less than an hour after the decision, the baby, shown above, was operated on and one of her eyes removed.

Save Child's Life, Says Blind Bellville Attorney

Mother of Chicago Infant Echoes Plea As 'Jury' of Doctors Weighs Best Course to Follow.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The left eye of six-weeks-old Helaine Judith Colan was removed from its socket at Garfield Park Community hospital today less than an hour after a life-or-death jury of 10 medical specialists voted to operate.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

While a "jury" of high medical scientists assembled in Chicago today to determine the fate of baby Helaine Judith Colan, whose death, physicians believe, can be averted only by the removal of both her eyes, Vance Stuller, blind Bellville attorney joined the child's mother in her plea to save the baby's life.

The five-weeks-old baby is suffering from glioma, a malignant tumerous condition which has already destroyed sight in her left eye and, it is feared, will snuff out the tiny life within two months unless an operation is performed which will leave the child blind.

Drawn and worn as a result of the suffering imposed upon her by the necessity of deciding whether to let nature take its tragic course or to order an operation that would doom Helaine to a lifetime of blindness, Mrs. Colan, according to International News Service dispatches, chose blindness for the child, saying:

"Whether she has one eye or no eyes, I want my baby. Let them

June Withdraws Separation Suit for 'Substantial' Sum.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—June O'Dea Gomez withdrew her suit for separation from Lefty Gomez, New York Yankee pitcher today in consideration of a "substantial" single cash settlement. The exact amount was not revealed.

The withdrawal of the suit and charges of "drunkenness and wife-beating" against Gomez ended three days of conferences between opposing counsel and Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy who heard the case.

Melvin Kleebatt, counsel for Miss O'Dea, told the court that a "settlement had been reached."

PLANE STUNTING COSTS 3 LIVES

Pilot After Thrills Blamed In Colorado Air Tragedy.

PUEBLO, Colo.—(INS)—Stunting by an amateur pilot to give his passengers a thrill was blamed today for the loss of three lives in an airplane crash in a field near Ordway, 50 miles east of here, last night.

The dead were J. (Turk) Williams, 35, owner and pilot of the plane; Ross Malone, 35, a laborer, and Delane O'Dell, 13, a grammar school student.

The plane crashed from a height of about 500 feet after it had gone through a series of stunts.

NEW CLUES SPUR PARSONS SEARCH

Police Hunt Body of Society Matron, Missing Year.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Two new, mysterious affidavits, contents of which were withheld from publication, today sent Suffolk county, L. I., authorities on an intensive search for the body of Mrs. Alice M. Parsons, missing society matron.

Said to throw new light on the baffling 11-months disappearance of the woman, the affidavits were believed to have convinced Suffolk authorities that Mrs. Parsons was murdered. On the strength of the newly-discovered evidence, investigators converged on Riverhead, L. I., to map a search of 30 square miles of territory.

A "ransom" note was found pinned to the seat of the Parsons' sedan after Mrs. Parsons disappeared June 9.

ROOSEVELT IN MOVE TO STALL ADJOURNMENT

President to Insist Congress Stay in Session Till Wage, Hour Bill Passes.

MEETS LEADERS TODAY

Vacation Over, Executive to Call for Report on Drive to Aid Jobless.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration insistence that congress remain in session until it passes a wage-hour bill appeared today to be the probable outcome of a White House conference on legislative strategy.

President Roosevelt returning from a fishing trip called in his congressional leaders for a first-round report of their success in forcing the wage-hour measure to the house floor.

He also wanted their views on the amount of other legislation to be placed on the pre-adjournment calendar and on the progress of his spending-lending program. The latter will come before the house tomorrow.

Seeks to Quit June 1.

Although many legislators had hoped for adjournment by June 1, they agreed that such a program would make final enactment of any wage-hour legislation virtually impossible this year.

If the house passes the bill, as administration leaders contend it will, a joint committee must reconcile the provisions with those in a different senate measure passed last summer. That might require two or three weeks.

The senate proposed to let a board fix a maximum work week of 40 hours or more and a minimum wage of not more than 40 cents an hour. The house would set up an arbitrary system beginning at 44 hours and 25 cents and gradually shifting to 40 hours in two years and 40 cents an hour in three years.

Opinion was divided in the senate on the reception the house proposal would be given there.

Senator Borah (R.-Ida.) said he would support the measure if it set reasonable standards for wages and hours without creating a new

Congressmen, Defying Speech Ban, Say 'We'll Be Back.'

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—(AP)—Two new efforts to hold open meetings in Jersey City were planned today as the most highly publicized in a recent series of attempts to defy Mayor Frank Hague's ban on unauthorized public speeches spluttered and died.

One of the two congressmen whose appearance was called off within a 20-minute tube train ride from a crowd estimated by police at 65,000, announced he would be back, with even more congressmen if possible, a week from Saturday.

Representative Jerry J. O'Connell, (D., Mont.) expressed disappointment and disgust that his sponsors had cancelled speeches by him and Rep John T. Bernard, (Fl., Minn.) Saturday night, but said it averted a riot in which Hague's foes would have been "beat up."

Jane, The Prodigal, Comes Home and Kisses Her Old Desk From Pure Joy

Big Cities May Be All Right, But She'll Stick to Mansfield.

By JANE WILLIAMS

When the story of the prodigal son was written, stress was laid on the joy of the father at having the wanderer return—but did anyone ever wonder how the prodigal felt? Ask me; I know.

After a week on the largest daily newspaper in Ohio, the Cleveland Press, and working with a staff of expert editors, writers and cameramen, all of whom were helpful and kind, I'm still so glad to be back home that I kissed the old desk!

In the first place, I'll never again live in a big city unless I'm absolutely forced to. Life is much too short to spend a third of it riding street cars, buses and taxis going to and coming from places.

But aside from that, there is the difference between working on a metropolitan paper and a small city paper, with—so far as I am concerned—the balance in favor of the smaller paper.

The advantages of the large newspaper are mostly mechanical; you have an expert cameraman at your beck and call, and your pictures can be made to tell half of your story. All of your stories must be much shorter, therefore you don't need so much information, and take less time getting it.

But the disadvantages are important to the reporter. Because there are so many reporters getting out material and the size of the print space is limited on a large paper just as

SKIDDING AUTO CARRIES GALION MEN TO DEATH

Machine Cuts Off Mailbox and Phone Pole, Demolishes Tree and Crashes Into Shed and Lumber Pile as Pair Return In Friend's Car.

Two Galion young men rode to their death near Galion early Sunday when their automobile skidded from the highway, cut off a mailbox and telephone pole, plowed up a field, demolished a cherry tree and then crashed into a shed and lumber pile.

The victims, Dwight W. Bersinger and Clarence A. Corwin, both 26, died in Good Samaritan hospital, Galion, shortly after the accident. Both had skull fractures. Bersinger's neck also was broken. They were employes of the North Electric Manufacturing company of Galion.

Week-end traffic accidents and drownings claimed 12 lives in the state as ideal weather saw thousands of motorists jam the highways. Richland county, however, had no major accidents although two Mansfielders suffered injuries.

The fatal crash near Galion occurred about 2 a. m. Sunday when Bersinger and Corwin were returning home from Bucyrus. The car in which they were riding was owned by Robert Stone of near Galion, who had left his two friends earlier in the evening to come home with another friend.

Bersinger was thrown from the swaying car as the vehicle tore through a clover field opposite the Sentieri Monument works and careened back onto the highway again. It was believed that Corwin was driving since he was found hanging out of the driver's seat when the wrecked automobile came to a stop against a lumber pile.

J. C. Stiles, who lives near the scene of the crash, witnessed the accident from a window in his home. He told Galion police, who investigated, that the car apparently skidded on the wet pavement.

Funeral services for both victims will be held Tuesday afternoon. Rites for Bersinger will be conducted at the Snyder funeral home at 2 p. m. with Rev. R. R. Elliker of the First Reformed church officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery, Galion.

Services for Corwin will be held at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday at the

HITLER ARRIVES IN FLORENCE

He'll Hear New Proposal by Mussolini to 'Fraternize' Nazi, Fascist Parties.

(By United Press)

FLORENCE, Italy—"Fraternization" between the Nazi and Fascist parties was proposed today as Fuehrer Adolf Hitler arrived here en route home after his visit to Rome.

The proposal was reported to have been made by Premier Benito Mussolini, and would involve a political union between the two countries extending even beyond the friendly co-operation agreed upon in the talks at Rome.

Hitler, it was reported, might remain in Florence for 24 hours beyond his scheduled visit, due to end at midnight, so that the two dictators could talk it over.

The proposed extension, ostensibly to permit Hitler to see more of Florentine art and architecture, was also understood to be signed for supplementary talks.

The program of fraternization would include close co-operation and regular consultation between party leaders in Berlin and Rome regarding outward propaganda, cultural and educational campaigns and other political affairs.

The chief difficulty was seen in working out a common approach to a Jewish policy, on which the Nazis and Fascists do not see eye to eye.

Hitler was believed to be interested in the proposal but a definite decision awaited further discussion, since the two dictators met only briefly on Hitler's arrival here.

Hitler was greeted at Santa Maria Novella station by Premier Benito Mussolini, who preceded him from Rome by special train.

After reviewing a company of infantry which presented arms, Hitler and Mussolini emerged into the station square, where they received an ovation.

UAW Foes Seek to Have Martin Removed at Parley Today.

DETROIT — (U.P.) — Enemies of Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, will seek to remove him from office at a meeting of the union's executive board today.

Martin, a former Baptist preacher and a high leader of the CIO, was charged with ineffectiveness, dictatorial tactics, and administration irregularities.

The opposition comprised the union's conservative and radical faction united under the name of "harmony" for the purpose of ousting Martin. It was led by Richard T. Frankensteen, the leader of the conservative faction, who was once Martin's follower and who had been made assistant president at Martin's insistence. The other side of the combine—the left wing faction—was led by Vice President Wyndham Mortimer.

WOOLF'S LAWRIN, DERBY WINNER, WAS LUCKY TO EVEN BE ALIVE.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(NS)—It will go down in the records that Lawrin, the bay colt owned by Herbert M. Woolf, Kansas City, trained by B. A. Jones and given one million dollars worth of ride by Eddie Arcaro, won the 64th running of the Kentucky derby on Saturday in 2:04 4-5 for the mile and a quarter. That the colt came on in the last five-eighths to run the legs so far out from under Menow and Fighting Fox that both looked as though they had been worn down to the knees

And that he had enough left to resist the last rush of Dauber in the final eighth.

But that's only the story for the records, which are notoriously dull and drab and know aught of chance, caprice and the whim of Kismet The real story of the Kentucky derby is that the winner not only was fortunate in finding a lot of horses on the track who either couldn't or wouldn't run fast enough to overtake a wheel barrow; he also was fortunate to even be alive.

If the usual veterinary surgery had attended his sire, Insco, some years ago, the latter would have been shot. In other words, Lawrin almost wasn't born at all. And as for Jockey Arcaro, he was offered the horse in Florida last winter but "shopped around" so long he came within a few days of being on the ground when the race was run.

Briefly, Arcaro was willing to take Lawrin, provided "he couldn't get anything else." The horse he really wanted was Menow.

* * *

MOREOVER, Lawrin was the first horse M. Woolf has had in the derby—and he won with it. Mr. Joe E. Widener and the Vanderbilts, among others of the striped pants set, have been trying to do that for years with so little encouragement that they withdrew altogether this time, baffled and discomfited.

The Woolf stock farm, outside Kansas City, originally had been devoted to the breeding of saddle and show horses But ultimately the clothing merchant branched into the thoroughbred running game, coming up with a number of good horses, but never anything of any significance until he mated Insco and Margaret Lawrence. The name, Lawrin, is a combination of the first syllables of Insco and Lawrence.

Insco had been a derby horse in his own right. But he broke a leg in training and, in the ordinary course of events would have been destroyed But the medico decided to save him and thereafter he hobbled about on a leg that looked like a lamp stand or an inverted megaphone He finally was bought by Mr. Woolf as a sire, he produced Lawrin and the latter was bred right here in Missouri—strictly against the tenets of racing tradition

When the horse had a big season in Florida, topping it off by winning the Flamingo at Hialeah Mr Woolf believed he had a derby winner and promptly sought out Arcaro as the rider. He later was hardly enthusiastic but played safe. He answered guardedly first because he wanted a "better horse," and second, because he was under contract to Mrs. Payne Whitney, one of whose candidates might go to the post

* * *

ONLY last Tuesday in fact Mrs Whitney had Red Breast in the derby trial at Churchill Downs with Arcaro up Two horses turned back by the barns somewhere so Arcaro was free and immediately contacted Hal Price Headley, owner of Menow Mr Headley was receptive but Arcaro for some reason, turned hesitative and when finally he did decide to take the horse, he found that 'Sonny Workman had got the assignment

Bill Black, Jr., Stars At Michigan

Bill Black, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Black, of Mansfield, a sophomore at University of Michigan, is a member of the Michigan golf team which defeated Illinois Saturday, 12½ to 10½, at Ann Arbor in an opening Big Ten affair.

Black shot a 71 to win his match, 2½ to ½, and then he and his partner teamed up to come through on top in the doubles, 2½ to ½. The former Mansfield high star has won all his matches this season. Against Michigan State recently he scored a birdie on the 18th to win his match. He won his other match against Wayne college.

Jack Wilson Steals Bob's Boston Show

Holds Indians to Four Hits to Win 5 to 0.

BOSTON—(UP)—The first defeat of the season today was placed against the name of Bob Feller, but the Iowa farmboy had proved he was still the game's top box office attraction.

A crowd of 33 000 fans braved threatening weather here yesterday to see Feller hurl against the Boston Red Sox. he fans received only an abbreviated look at the young right-hander, however, as the Red Sox downed the Cleveland Indians 5 to 0.

Allows Four Hits.

Jack Wilson, who like Feller depends on a fast ball as his stock in trade, stole the thunder from his young adversary. Wilson pitched 4-hit ball and set 12 Cleveland players down on strikes as he gained his first victory of the season.

Feller was lifted for a pinch hitter at the start of the fifth inning. In the four rounds he worked the youngster was nicked for three hits and four runs.

The Red Sox scored three times in the first inning and virtually clinched the game. The Boston runs were due more to a pair of defensive blunders by Hal Trosky at first base than to ineffective pitching by Feller.

In the first inning Roger Cramer was safe when Trosky dropped Lyn Lary's throw. Nonenkamp struck out. Joe Vosmik then singled and with two strikes on Jimmy Foxx, Feller "grooved" a fast one and the Red Sox star slashed it out for a triple that drove in two runs Cronin bunted and with Foxx nipped at the plate, Trosky threw wildly to permit the run to score.

After Feller was taken out, Johnny Humphries went to the mound. He permitted only two hits the remainder of the distance and the only run off his delivery was scored in the eighth.

The defeat cut the Indians' hold on first place to a slender one-half game.

Lead Reduced.

The clubs were to meet here again today. Oscar Vitt continued to experiment with his pitching staff and announced Denny Galehouse would start for the Indians. Lee Rogers, a rookie southpaw, was to oppose him

Mansfield Bows to Federal Glass Team as It Fails to Hit in Pinches.

COLUMBUS — Manager Dewey Durant's American Legion outfit of Mansfield bowed to the Federal Glass entry, 2 to 0, in a Central Ohio league opener here Sunday.

Although out-hitting the host club, 8 to 7, and awarded three passes, the Mansfield team was unable to hit when hits meant runs.

Opens With Hits.

Tommy Moxley opened the second and fourth innings with singles, but never scored. In the fifth, Mansfield opened with singles by Freddy Lewis and Dick Donnan. The next two men were easy outs. Moxley walked to load the bases but Lloyd Beal's liner was grabbed by the second baseman to halt the uprising.

Durant protested a decision in the second that robbed the Legion of a run. After Moxley opened with a single, Durant doubled, and the Mansfield manager claimed interference by the third baseman kept the former from scoring.

Howard Patterson, former Ontario high star, started on the hillock for the Legionnaires, and held the heavy-hitting Columbus team to three hits until the seventh when it tallied its two runs.

With any sort of assistance on the attack, Patterson would have been returned the victor.

Four In Row.

Two men were out when the Glassmen staged their game-winning rally. Four straight hits by Collins, Nettles, Meyers and Zong sent two runs across the plate.

Aid Geiger came to his rescue at this juncture and retired the next batter to put a stop to the run-making. Columbus did not threaten in the next inning.

Donnan and Moxley, with two hits apiece, led the Mansfield hitting

Although defeated, the Mansfield team showed considerable promise in its debut, and Durant expects it to develop into a dangerous title contender.

Triumph Leaves 3-Year-Old Title in Air.

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK — (AP) — The unexpected victory of Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin in the Kentucky Derby Saturday did little to settle the three-year-old turf situation.

The lanky, Kansas City-owned son of Insco-Margaret Lawrence is not eligible for another important stake until the $30,000 Arlington park classic July 23. And then, too, there still is the ailing Stagehand to be reckoned with.

All of this means that as far as the three-year-old situation is concerned, the Preakness and Belmont will be just two more rich stakes. The classic figures to be the race to settle matters.

Although Lawrin ran a game race under Eddie Arcaro's guidance to give the Kansas City, Mo., merchant and Trainer Ben Jones their first Derby victory in their initial try, the performance was far short of those turned in by the last two victors—War Admiral and Bold Venture.

Lawrin was clocked in 2:04 4-5, for the mile and a quarter as he came from behind, took the lead in the stretch and then turned back the challenge of William Dupont, jr.'s, Dauber to register by a length. War Admiral's time last year was 2:03 1-5 and Bold Venture's 2:03 3-5.

Dauber, also second to Stagehand in the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby, was the only one of the more highly regarded contenders to give a good account of himself and even he paid 5 to 1 to place. Lawrin, fourth choice behind Fighting Fox, Bull Lea and Menow, returned $19 20 on a $2 straight ticket

The victory carried financial triumph as well as high turf honors for Woolf In addition to the purse of $47,050, Woolf was reported to have won nearly $150,000 on the colt, largely through future book bets. Lawrin boosted his earnings for two years to about $75,000.

The distance was too long for all except Lawrin and Dauber and it was too short for the latter. Can't Wait, a midget alongside Lawrin, was five lengths behind Dauber in third place and just holding on at the end. The Fox, 7 to 5 choice to give the east its fifth straight triumph in the classic, finished a disappointing sixth as Menow took fourth and The Chief fifth in a blanket finish with Can't Wait. Bull Lea, heavily played second choice, could do no better than eighth behind a despised outsider, Co-Sport. Elooto and Mountain Ridge, the other two rank outsiders, finished just as their odds indicated, ninth and tenth, respectively.

Trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons had no excuse for Fighting Fox "He just wouldn't run after seven eighths of a mile," said Fitz. "Jimmy Stout hit him twice with the whip after he showed signs of weakening and then he quit altogether. I'm going to try him with blinkers in the Preakness."

Infield Hit In Ninth Robs Young Hurler of No-Hit Game

Buzard Denies McKinley Chance to Gain Hall of Fame As Hayesville Beats Canzols, 5-0.

THEY think quite a bit about Bill McKinley as a pitcher over in Hayesville, and his boosters included the Ira D. Ling Canzols today.

The Canzols obtained just one measley hit off the tricky delivery of the former Wooster College right hander as they went down to defeat before the Hayesville club by a 5 to 0 count Sunday at Hayesville

Two Out In 9th.

McKinley had a no-hit game in his grasp with two gone in the ninth inning, but Fred Buzard knocked his entry in the hall of fame to smithereens by sending a high bounder over the pitcher's head.

Shortstop Paullins fielded the slow hopper, but Buzard beat his throw by a step to rob McKinley of what was almost a perfect game. The count was 2 and 2 on Buzard when he singled.

Buzard was the only Canzol player to get on base as Hayesville fielded flawlessly behind McKinley. He got on twice. The other time Buzard reached first was in the fourth when he drew a walk. He was sacrificed to second and stole third, but was stranded. No other Ling player saw second again.

McKinley Fans 12.

McKinley struck out 12 men, while Gil Weigand, who toiled for the Canzols, whiffed 10 and issued four walks. Weigand, however, was also stingy with hits, permitting only five. Three of the Hayesville runs were tallied on errors.

Score Second Win At Carey

Hi-Speeds Triumph, 13-7; Beer on Mound.

The Mansfield Hi-Speeds chalked up their second straight victory of the season Sunday by walloping the Carey Eagles, 13 to 7, at Carey.

Petey Beer, the Hi-Speeds' hurler received credit for the second triumph. He was removed for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning after giving up six hits. Knackstedt, who replaced him on the mound, gave up the final run of the game

Collect Home Runs.

The Mansfielders, led by Johnny Schmidt and Bob DeHaven who collected a home run apiece, grabbed a lead in the second inning and coasted through. The Hi-Speeds scored six runs in the second, four in the sixth and added three more in the ninth.

Schmidt smashed his circuit blow with two mates aboard, while DeHaven added his in the sixth with two on deck.

Carey hopped on Beer for a run in the opening inning to take an early lead, but were never in the game after Mansfield tallied six in the second.

Schmidt, Majoy, Ganaway and Beer each collected two hits to pace the winers. Donelson and Keckler were the only Carey players to solve Beer's deliveries for two hits

Features Game.

Max Scott's catching was a feature of the game He made several brilliant one-handed stabs of fouls to pull Beer out of a hole on different occasions.

This Linta Boy Is Getting Tough

Mansfield High Junior Again Cracks Own Pole Vault Mark As He Scales Bar At 13 Feet.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

SATURDAY turned out to be a big day in the brief but spectacular pole vaulting career of John Linta.

Linta not only fashioned a new Stadium field record in his specialty Saturday, but also won the vaulting championship of the nocturnal Salem relays to keep his record of not having been defeated in this event this season intact.

The Mansfield high school junior had only to beat 11 feet to annex a first at Salem, and he bettered it by a foot to win with apparent ease. He did not attempt a record at Salem because of the poor vaulting conditions.

Coach Harry Mehock's protege negotiated the cross bar at 13 feet to wreck his own Stadium field record by three inches, and barely missed setting a higher mark.

Linta made two attempts at 13 feet, 6 inches, but touched the bar just enough on both occasions to knock it from the pins

Just a Habit.

Saturday marked the third time this season the junior vaulter has bettered the old mark of 12 feet, 6 inches held jointly by the Whittaker brothers of Sandusky, Don and Jim.

Linta

Linta first cracked the mark in a dual meet with Columbus North when he scaled the stick at 12 feet, 9 inches. He exceeded it again in the Mansfield Relays when he hoisted himself just a half inch short of the height registered in the North affair.

Linta's great work with the taped pole was not enough to save his teammates from defeat in their dual meet with Sandusky at Stadium field Saturday, however.

The Blue Streaks took the measure of the Men of Mehock by a 61 to 57 margin.

Although defeated by the defending state champions, Mansfield performed better Saturday than at any other time this season. The Red Streaks might have won the meet decision had it not been for Elmer Dials' injured knee.

Dials might have won the necessary points to win the meet had he been able to participate in the high jump. The lanky jumper has consistently beaten the leap that won the event for Sandusky Saturday.

Mehock kept Dials on the sidelines Saturday to permit the injury to mend before the district championships to be run off in Fremont in two weeks.

Two old field records were eliminated Saturday by the Red Streaks as they shared the firsts evenly with the visitors. In addition to Linta's mark, the Mansfield mile relay quartet, consisting of Sampsel, Rose, Fleming and McMullen, bettered the old standard of 3 36 6 set by Cleveland Central in the Relays this spring by one-tenth of a second.

A number of other records were threatened as the thinlies battled it out under perfect weather conditions last week-end.

A Hurdler, Too.

Linta also showed great form in the 220-yard low hurdles. He was timed at 26.9 as he won going away. Daryl Heiser tripped over the high sticks in 16.5, with two teammates, Lyons and Pfahler, in close pursuit.

The Logan-Kinkel-LeMunyon-Smith 880-yard relay combination also did a fine job as it circled the oval twice in 1·34 3.

Other Mansfield firsts were registered by Jim Logan, who took the furlong in 23.3, and Rich Nagel, who tossed the discus 110 feet, 10 inches.

Saturday was the final home appearance of the Red Streaks, who will conclude their season of dual meets at Akron Garfield this week-end. Several of the Streaks will appear in exhibitions at Ashland Wednesday when the Reserve squad goes there for a dual clash

DiMaggio Bat Spurs Yanks

His Work Enables Champs to Climb Into Race.

By HENRY SUPER

NEW YORK—(UP)— It may only be a coincidence but—since Joe DiMaggio returned to the lineup on April 30, the world champion New York Yankees have been defeated only once in eight starts.

Before DiMaggio came to terms and moved into action, the Yanks had won six and lost six. In desperation, Manager Joe McCarthy altered his batting order last Sunday. He moved Lou Gehrig, who was in a slump, down to sixth and put DiMaggio in the clean-up spot. The Yankees haven't lost a game since. DiMaggio was hit safely in all eight games he's played—eight singles, three doubles, one triple and four homers—and Gehrig had snapped out of his slump.

Today the Yankees, hitting as of old, tied for second with the Washington Senators, and but one-half game out of the lead. On top are the Cleveland Indians, who have experienced trouble in the east.

Yesterday the Indians were beaten 5-0 by the Boston Red Sox. The Yanks, with DiMaggio, Gehrig and Henrich hitting homers, defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7-3, as Red Ruffing pitched his fourth victory of the season. Washington defeated St Louis 9-7.

The Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Tigers 7-6 in 10 innings. Charley Gehringer of the Tigers hit two homers and Hank Greenberg clouted one. Gehringer's second four-bagger came in the 10th but the A's made two runs in their half to win the ball game.

Home runs decided three of the four National League games. Mel Ott of the Giants hit two, each with a man on, in the first and sixth innings as the Giants beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2 and stretched their National League lead to 3-1½ games.

HANDS CANTON GOLFERS DEFEAT AT COOLRIDGE

Mansfield high's golf club handed Canton McKinley its first defeat of the season Saturday at Coolridge Country club. The score was 12½ to 3½.

Bob Moorhead pounded out a 73 to lead the Mansfielders to their third victory of the season. Mansfield's only defeat was handed out by Ashland recently. Fry paced McKinley with a 74. McKinley will have a chance to avenge the defeat when Mansfield treks to Canton Saturday for a return match.

MONDAY, MAY 9, 1938

The younger generation eventually becomes the older generation that finds fault with the younger generation.

One congressman proposes a National Laugh Week—being in an environment that frequently provides the incentive.

There being such little change in "human nature" from one year to the next, it's probably about time to be on the lookout for some revised version of the chain-letter racket.

A Stranger's Impressions.

BACK on her job with the Cleveland Press today, Helen Allyn will quite likely have some pleasant recollections of last week's "exchange" work on The News-Journal, while Jane Williams was enjoying a similar experience in Cleveland.

One part of Helen's column in Saturday's paper was illuminating—the part where she told of being warned that Mansfield people have a reputation of being "chilly" to strangers. But, she said, "everyone has been friendly, helpful and apparently interested."

There you have it in a nutshell. Mansfield is naturally warm-hearted, hospitable and friendly—asking only that strangers who come here conduct themselves in a way that merits acceptance.

It can be cold and aloof to those of questionable past and unproved acceptability, or it can extend an immediate cordial and sincere welcome to those who bring some evidence of previous creditable behavior and associations.

Helen Allyn found Mansfield people "friendly, helpful and apparently interested." Anyone who finds them otherwise may well take time for a little introspection—possibly the fault lies in the individual rather than in the city.

Check on Private Arms.

CONGRESS may as well go ahead and pass the bill for registering private armament that has been hanging fire in the house ways and means committee. The lawmakers won't be taking any serious chances in the next election if they do. A national poll shows that voters are more than five to one in favor of it.

This would be federal registration of pistols and revolvers. It is plain that the "right to bear arms" guaranteed in the Constitution is not infringed, because there is no prohibition of arms—merely a check on them to help in the war against criminals. The names of people buying such weapons would be on record, to help identification. The registration would not hurt them. There is probably justification, too, for the requirement that in case of resale the new purchasers shall be fingerprinted. It would be an added check on purchase for criminal purposes.

This is getting at the robbery and murder problem directly. Nearly all such crimes are committed with firearms. The civilized thing is to shut off the gun supply from those who make war on society.

Those Who Choose To Be Different.

FROM the time of Johnny Appleseed, in the early days, Mansfield has seldom been without some strongly individualistic character who was regarded as "eccentric," because his way of life departed from the ordinary pattern.

For a time, almost a half century ago, it was "the Immortal J. N.," whose strange appearance and unique philosophy attracted attention on the occasions of his frequent visits to Mansfield during his nation-wide peregrinations.

Now it is Hugh J. Fokner who gains more than passing notice because he chooses to let his hair grow long and to wear a beard—as might have gone without comment in Civil war times, but fails to conform to present customs.

Persons whose memory carries back over any considerable period, or who have an old family album, will have in mind a time—not so long ago—when practically every man wore some sort of facial hirsute adornment—either mustache and beard, burnsides or goatee.

Then came an era of smooth faces, gradually succeeded by the funny little mustaches which are even yet sometimes affected by ambitious young entrants into various of the learned professions.

Mr. Fokner predicts that some later swing of Fashion's cycle will bring beards back into general vogue among men. Maybe so, maybe so—but probably not so abruptly as to justify immediate concern for the safety razor business, which is just now on the verge of going electrical.

The Economical Sex.

IT IS UNUSUAL to hear women criticised as not being good spenders. Most husbands and fathers seem to think that women spend too freely. But a woman active in the National League of Women Voters thinks differently.

"Women are entirely too conservative when it comes to spending money," she says, "regardless of the good it may accomplish, whether local or national." She is speaking especially of public expenditure, and says their parsimony there is "probably due to the fact that they are accustomed to keeping such a careful and strict household budget."

Most men, although accustomed to regarding their womenfolk as extravagant in household spending, would probably spend more freely themselves if they were handling the money. Few of them would take the trouble to save the nickels and pennies.

New Conquest of Fog.

AVIATION continues its fight against fog, with improvement in blind flying equipment and landing systems at airports.

Installation of such a landing system, nearing completion at one of the big airports, consists of a runway on which pilots unable to see the ground will be able to land by following a special "curved" radio beam. The 2,500-foot runway connects with the hard-surface landing mat, giving pilots a total of 4,500 feet straight-away landing space.

There will still be weather conditions so bad that planes will be grounded temporarily. But the devices which make flying and landing entirely by instruments a safe and sure practice will enable planes coming from a region of good weather to land at their destination in spite of local fog or other cause of zero visibility.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

THE housing situation is becoming a tragedy. The large middle group of citizens —"the cream of the nation"— is the chief sufferer.

There is an instance of one family having its house rented over its head and being unable to obtain another house within its means. Here is the theory of scarcity reduced to its most terrible dimensions. And nobody is gaining.

What IS the trouble with housing? I have read many articles. None seems to offer a clear solution.

There is plenty of money available for new housing. The government, banks and individuals offer it. A man in one large bank told me that his bank was "desperate" to loan money on new housing—but so far has had no success. Once it thought it had a "bite"—in the erection of a new funeral home. But by the time its man reached the scene, five other offers already had been made to the person building the structure. An individual cut the bank's rate one per cent, and still could not place his money. The funeral home man had idle cash of his own.

* * *

WHAT IS SOLUTION?

It evidently takes more than easy money to encourage housing —or any other business.

The fundamental lies in security. Security of job would increase house building enormously. Security of work would reduce building workers' wages.

Even more, however, seems necessary. Speculation value has to be taken out of land. (That has been a problem unsolved for ages.) And the man who improves his land should not be penalized in taxes for making the improvement.

Perhaps we are working further toward a single tax.

But would that be a solution? Or would government ownership of all housing (do we hear cries of socialism?) Or would government construction, so much a year, with cash-payment sales?

All one can say is that there is no solution at hand now. And, either with inflation or increase in business, the evils will be intensified, rather than eased, by speculation.

BOYCOTTING MEXICO

Some weeks ago we quoted from a dispatch saying that U. S. oil companies might boycott any company in the world buying or transporting Mexican oil. That, of course, was retaliation for the Mexican government's expropriation of British and American oil properties for failure of companies to comply with a Mexican labor ruling.

This, it was pointed out by international observers, was a dangerous situation, in that it could bring about, through private corporations, international complications which might lead to wars.

Now read this dispatch from Mexico City to the Wall Street Journal:

"MEXICO CITY—Federal petroleum bureau, which is handling the property of the expropriated oil companies for the government, is experiencing difficulties in keeping Mexican gasoline at its present high grade. It has been unable to secure tetraethyl lead from United States concerns.

"Since this product is essential in gasoline refining, a lowering in the quality of the gasoline here is threatened. Tetraethyl lead is sold by companies whose properties were expropriated recently, and they refuse to sell this product to the Mexican government!

"Authoritative sources report the latter has already taken steps to obtain the intervention of the U. S. embassy in an attempt to persuade the American companies to sell to Mexico.

"Officials predict that unless present concessions are remedied, motor traffic in Mexico will be seriously affected, especially in the coastal regions, since lack of tetraethyl lead is especially harmful to motors at sea level."

Timely Editorial

No German Exhibit.

We think the German government exhibited sound judgment in declining to participate in the 1939 World's Fair in New York, the slogan of which is "Building the World of Tomorrow."

However satisfying the cultural and material advantages of life under the Nazi regime of "planned mediocrity" may seem to its regimented subjects, exhibits portraying them would appear to poor advantage ranged alongside those of the more progressive nations who worship no god of "ersatz," who encourage rather than discourage education and individual resource, maintain high standards of scholarship in their universities and which do not exile any writer or scientist who shows symptoms of having original ideas.

The intellectual and industrial poverty of Nazism would be thrown into merciless relief in comparison with the resources of other nations. Hitler couldn't very well send a military exhibit to the fair and since pretty much of everything else worthwhile in German national life is being sacrificed to the piling up of armaments, the exhibit would be rather thin.—Columbus Dispatch.

Florida Primary Presents Puzzle

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Some very curious and intricate puzzles are presented by the recent Florida Democratic primary. One of them is accentuated, curiously enough, by none other than Chairman James A. Farley, of the Democratic national committee, in a statement rushed out even before all the returns were in to claim a sweeping victory for the New Deal. Said Chairman Farley:

"The signal victory of Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, a staunch New Deal advocate, over Representative J. Mark Wilcox, campaigning for the senate seat on the straight-out issue of opposition to the New Deal," etc.

Now the interesting point raised by Chairman Farley, inadvertently, revolves around his own denunciation of Wilcox. For it would seem to be a logical deduction that every voter who marked his ballot for Wilcox is an anti-New Dealer.

* * *

VIEWED as a contest between two party factions, or between two candidates, Pepper's victory was overwhelming. He had a lead of more than two to one over Wilcox.

But if viewed that the men and women who voted for Wilcox were anti-New Deal, then it would appear that one-third of the Democrats in Florida are against the present Democratic Administration in Washington.

That is not enough to make any difference, probably, in the Florida election. No one expects any Southern state to elect a Republican to the senate. Certainly not since 1932, when, though the bolters won, they were disregarded by the Hoover administration for which they had fought.

But in Northern and Western states such a loss would spell inevitable disaster in November. It is an axiom in politics that no party can afford to lose ten per cent of its voters. The Florida primary would seem to indicate a loss of more than 30 per cent.

Another, and entirely different, problem is presented by the fact that Senator Pepper, in his campaign, laid a great deal of emphasis on old age pensions. If it had been Dr. Francis E. Townsend himself talking, he could not have gone much further in depicting the desirability of security for the aged, and security for the young against having to support their own parents, aunts and uncles.

It was this campaign by Pepper which led Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, to comment that President Roosevelt and Dr. Townsend would have to roll dice to see who was really the victor in Florida.

* * *

NOW the question is whether Florida is merely like California, in that a tremendous number of old people have moved there to avoid the more rigorous winters of their native states, or whether this sentiment of the old for security and of the young to be relieved of obligations to their own old folks is merely typical of all states.

In short Was Dr. Townsend right in his assumption that there is so much sentiment for his plan that if put to any real test it would sweep the country?

It is almost impossible, at the moment, for Washington politicians to do anything but guess at the answer. But this much is certain. The fact that Pepper was so extraordinarily successful will not pass unnoticed.

Was Norman Thomas Kidnaped?

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Mayor Frank Hague's Jersey City policemen hustled Socialist Norman Thomas across a state border and thereby brought to Washington examination one of the fancier varieties of government that exist in this country under the benevolent eyes of the Statue of Libery.

Thomas, to whom a good issue is more important than ham and eggs for breakfast, barely had been placed on the New York-bound ferry than he began making headlines in protest against Jersey City's refusal to let him speak freely in Journal Square.

First, he said he was denied the right of free speech, which is a constitutional issue, per se.

Second, he contended that when he was taken from New Jersey and put aboard the New York ferry it amounted to kidnaping by Hague's police and entitled him to the protection of the Lindbergh Law, which brings the federal government in on kidnapings when the victim is carried across a state line.

Washington observers, who keep an eye out for this and that, said at once that here was Domestic Example Number One of the operation of one-man government.

* * *

Tough Or Tender.

HAGUE has his friends and his enemies, perhaps as many of one as the other. He is constantly called a city dictator and once said himself he was the law in Jersey City. Thomas is only one of several who recently have failed to win Jersey City approval for making a speech.

But Hague's friends argue that the same hand that governs public speaking also suppress the back wash of small crime that otherwise might pour in from New York City and engulf Hague's Hudson County in a 365-day annual crime wave.

Hague has financed a maternity hospital in Jersey City and one time in Washington he encountered a hard pressed constituent whose wife soon was to need hospital care and he a job. They got both, plus a $10 bill.

* * *

Money Back—Sometimes.

NEW JERSEYANS here say no dictator has a closer touch on the way the vote is going than Hague has in Hudson County. Republicans have complained bitterly about the way the vote turns out each time but an old state law makes it tough on the man who demands a recount. The one who contests an election in New Jersey must put up the cost of a recount, which can amount to a right comfortable sum if a number of tabulators start dragging the operation out. The contestant gets his money back only if he wins, which, our informants here say with a wry smile, isn't often.

Hague in Jersey City is being compared to the late Huey Long in Louisiana as the key figure in a one-man government. The intricacies of Long's system was just becoming well known to the rank and file in the country when he was shot. Huey used to say that his was a true democracy, with nearly everybody wanting the things he was doing.

Now the Thomas deportation (well, wasn't he put on a ferry?) gives the country another chance to look at and think over the good and the bad of the one-man way.

Tribute to a Dancer.

You must be akin to wind,
Dancer, for your feet
Have its swiftness and its joy,
Like the wind, are fleet.

Like the wind, move merrily,
Easily and gay.
You are like the winds that sing
On an April day.

You are like the winds that go
Flower to flower, and bid
Each and every one disclose
Petals springtime hid.

Young America Asks---

Do You Want Bonus Babies?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SUBSIDIZED MOTHERS" . . . "BONUS BABIES." How about 'em?

Should Uncle Sam foot the bill for Lil' Precious?

Should we follow the example of Russia, Germany and Italy . . . earn Parental Pensions by providing our country with Cannon Fodder?

Or should we stick by the Good Old American Plan and pay for our own Family Trees?

Here's Mrs. Wesley Rounds of Odessa, N. Y., an American mother plenty mad that anyone should even dream of offering her a Baby Bonus.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"My husband and I have been married not quite four years (I'm 23 and he's 28.) We have two babies—10 months and 2 years. Even with our full share of sickness, we have made the grade without one bit of government help. Any other young couple can do the same if they are willing to work AND LIVE WITHIN THEIR MEANS.

'Of course we haven't had every luxury we desired nor have we gone out every night. BUT ON THE OTHER HAND, OUR BABIES ARE NOT BONUS BABIES!

"There's something wrong with anyone who is willing to have his babies branded as bonus babies before they are even born. That type of person wouldn't be apt to have babies who would make desirabie citizens.

"SPINELESS PARENTS ARE PRETTY APT TO MAKE SPINELESS CHILDREN. DO WE WANT A SPINELESS AMERICA? HAVEN'T WE ALREADY TOO MANY PEOPLE WHO ARE CONTENTED TO SIT BACK AND LET SOMEONE ELSE SUPPORT THEM, WITHOUT ENCOURAGING MORE BY BONUSES?

"If a child is taught from birth that he will have a good living whether he exerts himself or not, he'll probably not see the use of working when he is grown. What is going to happen when we all expect help?

Mrs. Wesley J. Rounds—23 years,
Odessa, N. Y.
($10 prize winner)

There's a letter which should bring us all up cheering!

* * *

AND here's another to those who complain that we "shouldn't be forced to accept menial labor, just because we are on Relief." Introducing Mrs. Lois Blackman of San Jose, Calif., —the lady who can take it on the chin!

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Would I dig ditches if I could get no other employment? I most certainly would, and I'm a woman too! In fact, I've done almost everything but dig ditches.

"I've picked apples and olives on a side hill, with grass waist deep and wet from a recent rain, carrying a 12-foot ladder and a canvas bag. I've run a cutting-shed crew of ten and two shed bosses. I've picked potatoes following a plow. I've worked up wood, sawing and chopping as good as my man helper. I've cut onions, sliding along on the hot sand. I've picked grapes, slinging 125 70-pound boxes in a 10-hour day, and I've picked strawberries —truly no white man's job.

At the same time I've raised three small boys, done all my own work, made ten loaves of bread twice a week, washed and ironed and mended, fed the pigs and chickens, and sometimes milked—and loved it all!

"Would I dig ditches? To feed my boys and myself? Sure I would—and for that reason you've never seen my name on the relief rolls!"

Mrs. Lois Blackman—age 29,
San Jose, Calif.
($10 prize winner)

LAST, a plea that hits—sturdily yet reverently—at the very heart of our national despair. "YOUTH NEEDS RELIGION!" cries James Doherty of Baltimore, Md.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"One hears many arguments over the failure of the church to maintain its hold over Young America. As organizations, the various churches may have erred, but Religion has not and never will fail.

"We all need Religion—life is sterile and aimless without it—BUT I BELIEVE THE GREAT CHURCH LEADERS SHOULD PLACE THEIR ACCENT ON LIVING RATHER THAN DYING. Youth does not wish to be told about the efficient central heating system of Hell, or the pearly gates and golden streets of Heaven. They want to be shown how to face economic depression with optimism, how to attain serenity in the midst of chaos, and how to discern the true riches in the face of material. In other words, how to live life as He, the bravest and wisest of all youths, lived it!"

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Wall Street Scene: It is about 3 o'clock on a warm, summery afternoon. . . . The scene is a broker's office, perhaps an underhand peg from where Washington took the oath of office. . . . It is certainly no farther than that. . . . A young fellow who has been with the firm only a short time stares out the window. . . . He is bored, and tired of having nothing to do. . . . There just isn't anything for him to do.

Fired with ambition, he begins to wonder if he is ever going to get anywhere, if he is ever to find any outlet for his energy.

So he walks into the office of a junior executive . . . to complain about his lack of responsibility. He really puts up a good spiel . . . The junior executive looks down at his own desk, and smiles a little reminiscently . . . and sadly.

On the desk is a crossword puzzle . . . completely worked.

* * *

LEXINGTON Avenue Scene: It is the going-home hour and New York has just been bathed in electric light. . . . Of course, it is still day. . . . But the lights come on early in New York.

Suddenly, around the corner and down the street comes a blind man. . . . He is playing a violin and with him is walking a blind woman, probably his wife. . . . They have a sign, of course, which says "We Are Blind." . . . She leads the way slightly, perhaps by half a step. . . . And she is tapping with a stick, to guide her husband. . . . She also is holding a tin cup in the time-honored fashion of alms seekers everywhere.

I am standing perhaps 20 feet from the pair, to one side. . . . I run my hand into my pocket for a coin. . . . Since I make no noise they cannot possibly hear me. . . . And being blind, of course, they can not see me. . . . Nevertheless, the split second the coin is withdrawn from my pocket the "blind" woman turns, says "Thank you," and advances to meet me. . . . She raises the cup unerringly to the hand that holds the coin. . . . The coin rings into the cup. . . . As they toddle off the old man's violin breaks into an old "blues" song, "Out In The Cold Again."

* * *

BARBERSHOP Scene: This one happens in the basement shop of a hotel. . . . The barber is talking to a man whose face is a coil of hot, steaming towels. . . . A manicurist, who is not a blond, has the patron's right hand. . . . The shoeshine boy is putting an extra flourish to his flannel rag as he strives for a "gleam" on the man's shoes. . . . Nothing is said. . . . Nothing out of the ordinary. . . . But you can tell when somebody important is having the works in a barbershop in New York. . . . You know it is somebody whose name means something. . . . So you just hang around for a few moments. . . . And finally ask for a shine, although it is really one of the few times you can recall that you don't need a shine. . . . And then, eventually, you win. . . . For that guy can't stay under the towels all day . . . not without being parboiled. . . . Well, it's an old friend revealed to you. As the towels are uncoiled, you catch the ruddy, familiar countenance of Vincent Lopez . . . back from a long, long jaunt on the road.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

The Emerald Isle.

Ireland — the Emerald Isle, "Why?" asks a reader.

True, where the land is green, it is very green, and certainly to one who loves it, "Emerald Isle" is no flattery. The traveler may well wonder, however, who expected to find grass and leaves of a very different hue than anywhere else—in the world, if this expression is not like so many of its kind, due to the "eye of the beholder" as well as what he beholds.

Take the "Blue Ridge Mountains," for example. True—in the distance against a sunlit sky, they do seem, to one who looks for it, to show almost a line of blue. But would we have seen it had not it been for the one in whom they first inspired the poetic expression?

According to the Irish poet, Dr. William Drennan, who lived from 1754 to 1820, himself often credited as the author of the expression, it had its origin in a party song called "Erin, To Her Own Tune," which was written, apparently anonymously, in 1795.

LOVELORN JAPS WAIT FOR 2,400 COLONIAL BRIDES

Young Nippon Farmers Count Hours Till Wives-to-Be Arrive in Manchoukuo.

(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

NEW YORK—Several thousand lovelorn young Japanese immigrant farmers are sighing under the spring moon of Manchoukuo (Manchuria) and counting the lagging hours until the arrival of 2,400 girls who are being sent out from the homeland to become colonial brides.

These little women and their prospective husbands are among the 'covered wagon' pioneers of one of the world's greatest colonization schemes.

They are the vanguard of 5,000,000 Nipponese who will be sent out to consolidate for Mikado and country this rich conquest, for which Japan stands condemned by many nations.

It is a far reach from the cherry blossoms of doll-garden Japan to the endless fields of waving millet in Manchuria—a hard adventure in a land of mystery. But the girls will go forward to the youths they never have seen, to build homes and work in the fields and bear babies for the glory of Nippon, trusting blindly in the old Japanese proverb.

Love makes every girl beautiful to her man.'

Mop Up Of Conquest.

The colonization scheme is, as has been said, the mopping up of a conquest. Japan's virtual annexation of Manchuria by force has let loose an avalanche of condemnation, and precipitated a controversy which will outlast this generation.

There are two sides to most questions, and if you ask a Japanese why his country invaded Manchuria, he most likely will put forward the ensuing statements, although he undoubtedly will also record other reasons, such as the necessity for combatting communism.

The total area of Japan proper is only about 148,000 square miles—almost exactly the size of New England and New York State. Into this comparatively small territory are jammed 70,000,000 people.

The population per square mile is 469.

The population of continental United States is 41 and a fraction persons to the square mile.

There are millions of persons who cannot be taken care of properly, and many of them are in dire want.

Due to the Japanese family system there is no way of getting an estimate of actual unemployment. In the land of the shoguns the members of a family stand together. If a man or woman is hungry and without work, he or she returns to the ancestral home or turns to other relatives for support.

Still the slums of great cities present terrible conditions. Whole families of six or seven persons live in single rooms perhaps 12 feet square.

In the overcrowded country districts, too, the farms are too small to provide livelihoods for all who are born to the soil.

Naturally such conditions produce many serious social problems. One of these is political unrest, and Japan has had her share of this in recent days.

So the government proposes to ease the situation by sending a million families—5,000,000 souls—to Manchuria in the next 20 years.

Thus far some 20,000 families totaling 100,000 persons have been sent to Manchuria. They are being helped financially by the government. The colonization will be speeded up as the settlements grow.

Westinghouse To Give City Look At World Fair Float

The prize winning float of the Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing company, which appeared in the big Preview Parade of the World's Fair of 1939, in New York City last week, will arrive in Mansfield tomorrow morning for exhibition.

The float won first prize in the production division of the parade, which took three hours to pass the reviewing stand. Westinghouse will have a big exhibit at the World's Fair next year.

The float, depicting power, is 30 feet long all in white papier mache. It depicts the story of electricity in a monster cogwheel mounted between two massive horses' heads. Giant fists reining the horses heads on either side symbolizes man's control of electrical power.

Manned by a crew of three the float has been taken on a journey to the company's various headquarters throughout the east and as far west as Mansfield. It will arrive at Central park about 12 noon tomorrow where it will remain on display for an hour before being taken to the Westinghouse plant. It will also be taken to Senior high school at 3 p. m. for a display.

SAVE LIFE, PLEA FOR AILING BABY

Blind Bellville Attorney Joins Infant's Mother in Appeal for Operation.

operate if there is hope. Let them do anything, but save my baby," the frantic mother cried today as the emergency council of 10 medical specialists assembled to determine the fate of the child.

The burden of deciding whether to operate was placed on their shoulders after the mother and the young father, Dr. Herman Colan, a dentist, found themselves unable to cast the fateful die.

Joins Mother In Plea.

Stuller today joined the mother in the plea for the life of the Colan baby, even though it means dooming her to blindness for life.

"I know it's a serious operation," the blind attorney said, "but I'd be in favor of the operation if there is the barest chance to save at least the sight of one eye, rather than doom the child to death as the physicians have said will surely come, I'd say operate. That is, assuming that the doctors are sure that she will die unless the operation is performed."

"Blindness, of course takes a tremendous amount of backbone, and one's sensibilities must become almost calloused in order to overecome the handicap," the attorney said, adding that after a person thus afflicted has gained a position of independence his lot is not an unbearable one.

Blind For 22 Years.

Stuller has lived in a world of darkness for 22 years. He was injured while playing tag in the dark, and ran into a tree, when he was a boy of 7, then living in Wisconsin.

Now 29, he is a practicing attorney in Bellville. His wife's eyes are his—she does all his reading for him. When this reporter called him today for his opinion on the case of the Chicago infant, he was familiar with the story—he had "read" it in the papers.

Stuller commented, however, that while blindness makes life much harder, a girl is handicapped more than a boy.

"For one thing it lessens her chances for marriage," he said.

Stuller said, concerning the Colan baby, that if her parents were financially able to afford her satisfactory training or if governmental agencies can furnish the proper training that the girl's chances in life despite blindness, would be materially strengthened.

He also said the publicity that has been given the baby might tend to increase public interest in the matter of providing proper training for the blind.

If an operation is decided upon—and that course was strongly indicated today—it probably will be performed this afternoon in Garfield Park Community hospital.

Baby Helaine awoke there in good spirits this morning.

For spiritual guidance in their deliberations the ten doctors will have the aid of Rabbis invited at the insistence of the mother. The baby's father as well as Mrs. Colan's father, Dr. Morris Hershman, also were to attend the conference, but as witnesses only.

ROBBER SLAIN

Runs Two Blocks With Bullet In Heart After Burglary.

PATERSON, N. J.—(INS)—A safe cracker ran two blocks today with a bullet in his heart before falling dead. He was identified as Vincent Wyzlowski, 25, of Paterson. He was shot by detectives Leo Donnelly and Joseph Sellner who caught him and a companion Donald Miller, 33, attempting to open the safe of the Garden theater. Miller was captured.

'Leave Baby Die', Mother Advises.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Her own child blind as the result of glioma, Mrs. Maurice Wohl today said she would advise the parents of five-week-old Helaine Judith Colan, of Chicago, to allow the child to die.

"Let the child die rather than suffer extreme pain and sightlessness", Mrs. Wohl said.

Fourteen months ago, she said, her two-year-old son developed glioma. When it was found the left eye was blind, it was removed. X-ray treatment was started on the right eye, but it failed, and the boy is now blind.

Fate of the Colan child, also suffering from glioma, was to be decided by a jury of scientists and Rabbis in Chicago today.

END SEA STRIKE

French Line Employes Reach Agreement in Tie-up.

LE HAVRE, France—(UP)—Charles De Chappedelaine, minister of merchant marine, announced today that a strike among employes of the French line had been settled.

The strike threatened to tie up North Atlantic passenger service to New York. Waiters, stewards, and cooks of the liners Normandie and Paris were reported ready to join others who had tied up seven ships.

The walkout was called because the workers claimed they were not issued new uniforms often enough. The matter of wages was not involved. The strike started aboard the Champlain last Thursday and spread to the Ile De France, Degrasse, Colombie, Floride, Indiana and Washington. Sailing of the Champlain was cancelled.

500 HUNT FOR MISSING GIRL, 4

Child Disappears As Father Fishes, Mother Sits In Auto.

KANE, Pa.—(UP)—Five hundred men searched through the brush-covered Allegheny National Forest 18 miles northwest of here today for four-year-old Marjorie West of Bradford, who disappeared on a Mother's Day outing with her parents and 11-year-old sister.

The family left Bradford yesterday afternoon. While the father, M. M. West, fished in a nearby stream, the mother sat in an automobile, parked along the Morrison-Marshbury road.

The older sister returned and handed Mrs. West some flowers and then went back into the woods for Marjorie. But the child was missing.

ASKS PROPERTY OWNERS TO AID

Styert Calls for Co-operation in Paint, Fix-up Program as Clean-up Ends.

With the city's part in the spring clean-up campaign completed, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert today urged property owners to co-operate in a paint-up, fix-up and plant-up program.

Styert urged those in the residential as well as the business sections to join in the program.

"Many homes are in need of paint or repairs," Styert said, 'and now that the winter's accumulation of rubbish has been hauled away it would be well to have the work done which not only will add to the value of property but give work to the unemployed."

Styert reported that the clean-up campaign through the city's six wards completed Saturday, was the heaviest in recent years. More than 250 tons of rubbish were hauled to the city dump during the six days of the drive.

"I was surprised to learn how economically ... how little it costs to cook electrically ... only 57c per week!"

"I like the Westinghouse Too," says little Nancy Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Grohol, who is shown opening the range oven door for the photographer's attention.

"Like many other homemakers, I always thought it would be expensive to cook with an electric range. But that was before I purchased my new Westinghouse. I kept close track of my electric service bills and found that they increased only 52c per week on an average after my new electric range was installed. And part of that was due, I know, to other electrical appliances I purchased after the range. In fact, a special test meter placed on the range during the month of December, 1937, which recorded every bit of electricity used for a period of one month showed that my electric range cost only 57 cents per week to operate. During the course of that month, my records showed that I had baked six times, roasted three times, prepared two complete oven meals."

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THE ones who planted and cared for the orchard have been gone for many years. Until two weeks ago it lay north of the house unkempt and uncared for. Less than a dozen trees of the original hundred remained alive. The stark dead trunks and limbs of many others lay upon the ground, or stood gauntly among the tangle of bull thistles, alder shoots, milk weed, long grass and briers.

The rich black soil, where the turf had been upturned by the inquisitive snouts of root-hunting pigs, was a challenge to the farmer in me. We went to work. We pruned the few remaining trees. They were, fortunately, in one corner of the lot. We trimmed up the fallen trunks and branches and piled the brush in great heaps for burning. For two days last week, when the wind was right, we burned and burned. With the team we dragged the fallen wood and stood it on end beside the woodhouse. It will make delightful warmth next winter, when the buzz saw has cut it to stove length. We fired the long dead grass, cut off the alders, and rolled up the fallen, rusted old wire fence.

Yesterday two men began to plow. One of them drove the big gray team, the other guided the plow through the matted turf. It was not easy work. From time to time, the team would stop, while one of the men, with the ax, cut off some stubborn root.

But the soil is black, mellow, fragrant and delightful. When it is disked and worked fine with the harrow and cultipacker, it will make ideal garden. I shall plant peas in part of it, and melons in the rest.

Tonight the old orchard has a different look. Like a shaggy, unloved, unshaven tramp, who has cleaned up after years of neglect it stands hopeful and ready in the May moonlight. The few remaining trees hold up their heads and bloom.

We shall see what comes of it.

RICHLAND BLUE PRINT TAKES ON NEW PHOTOSTAT COPY SERVICE

Addition of a new department, Photostat copy service, was announced today by the Richland Blue Print service, 115 Bird building.

Photostat reproduces any subject quickly and economically. It prints directly on photostat paper the subject in question without the aid of a negative.

There are hundreds of uses for photostat prints and as a result, practically any person is a potential photostat customer.

One of the most important points in this copying service is that it is recognized by the courts as legal copy. A photostat print of the original is admitted by courts as legal evidence in place of the original.

In many instances, photostats have been presented in court battles when the original papers were not available. As a result, it is a common practice in business and government circles to have photostat copies made of important papers and documents.

Salesmen's catalogs and data sheets can be revised as frequently as necessary with the use of photostat prints. Pictures of new items, together with typewritten descriptions, tables, and prices can be pasted upon a large sheet. Photostat prints are made from this, automatically reducing it to the size of the catalog page. This keeps salesmen's specifications up to date at a low cost and saves reprinting the catalog so frequently.

In the offices of insurance companies, photostat prints are constantly in demand, such as copies of policy application forms, copies of doctor's certificates, of birth certificates, copies of applicant's history cards, appraisals, reports, charts and scores of other uses.

Then too, photostats have been used by banks to uncover forgery; in making sales record forms, saving retyping; in the reproduction of rare books and in the safeguarding of valuable papers and records.

BUILDS THRIVING PAINT BUSINESS

H. E. Hoffman Ships Products Into All Sections of Country.

In a few short years, H. E. Hoffman, Wooster road, has built his paint business into one of the largest in north central Ohio, shipping his products to all sections of the country.

Starting on a small scale in 1932 by mixing and selling a barrel of paint a week, Mr. Hoffman now buys his white lead in carload lots and operates two mixers 12 hours daily to meet the demands of his customers.

Only white and gray paints are mixed at the Hoffman shop in East Mansfield. As the result of many calls for other colors, he visited the factories of Dutch Standard paints, one of the leading lines of paint which has proven through both laboratory tests and actual use to be of exceptionally long life.

Today he has a full stock of Dutch Standard paints of all colors to meet any demands in beautifying homes and surroundings.

In addition to his paint stock, Mr. Hoffman has a complete line of pottery and novelties as well as varnishes, enamels and brushes.

Mr. Hoffman's theory of business to which he gives credit for the gains he has made in the past five years is simple—low prices with a quick turnover, inducing a larger volume.

"My motto has been to charge others as I would like to be charged myself," he says. "I have found that this has proven very successful. All the merchandise is guaranteed."

ATTICS

Space that was assigned to attics in many old houses can be converted to a useful purpose with careful planning. Funds with which to modernize attics are available under the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

FUEL EFFICIENCY

For each pound of coal consumed, the railroads in 1937 hauled 8 3/5 tons of freight and equipment one mile, the best record in fuel efficiency ever attained by them.

Pure Oil Offers 19 Services In Change-over Plan

Most folks living where there are definite climatic changes between the summer and winter seasons realize the necessity of changing the oil in the crankcase of their cars to a fresh, summergrade, full bodied oil in the spring, as well as the necessity of draining the transmission and differential, and adding hot weather lubricants.

In the southern climes where cars are not subjected to the brutal punishment of howling blizzards and sub-zero temperatures, motorists have come to use the spring and fall as a danger signal that it's time for the semi-annual check-up on their car.

In cold weather motor oils become thick and flow slowly. Therefore, lighter grades are used in order that they will permeate completely the tiny spaces between the moving parts of the motor.

Because oil tends to thin out under heat, a heavier oil is employed during hot weather to secure proper lubrication. To continue using the lighter winter oils might well lead to costly repairs, for at the higher temperatures of spring and summer they would thin out to the point where they would no longer have sufficient body to keep the metal parts of the motor from rubbing together.

The same story is true of transmission lubricants. Not only are they dirty and worn after a winter's driving, but will thin out in the summer heat until they can no longer keep that important film on the gear teeth, so necessary to prevent wear.

The Pure Oil company which originated the Bumper-to-Bumper service plan, advises autoists to get their spring change-over in one package and at one place, and save time, trouble and expense.

Pure Oil offers a list of 19 services for the price of five in preparing cars for the gruelling test of the blistering summer heat. These services are:

1—Crankcase drained and flushed
2—Crankcase filled with Summer-grade Tiolene
3—Transmission drained and refilled with Summer-grade Purelube
4—Differential drained and refilled with Summer-grade Prelube
5—Chassis completely lubricated
6—Radiator flushed and refilled
7—Battery inspected and tested
8—Tires serviced and inspected
9—Windows washed — car cleaned inside
10 to 19—Other items inspected: Spark plugs, Windshield wiper, Fan belt, Light bulbs, Gasoline line sediment bulb, Hose connections, Fenders, and Body (for rust spots), Oil filter cartridge, Roof (for leaks), Springs.

Conserves, Cake Today's Offering

By IRENE OBERLIN
Home Service Department of the Ohio Public Service Company.

With the fresh fruits coming into market and our winter's supply of preserves diminishing a few glasses of fresh marmalade, jam and conserves can make for more delightful breakfasting.

Here is an easy Strawberry Preserve recipe:

2 cups sugar
½ cup water
2 cups berries.

When the syrup spins a thread add the berries and cook fast for 15 minutes. Pour into a bowl to cool before filling glasses. Then the fruit will not rise to the top of jar or glass.

Amber Marmalade.

1 small pineapple (chopped fine)
1 grape fruit
1 orange
1 lemon

Slice grape-fruit, orange and lemon in fine slices, using a sharp knife, removing seeds. Use three measures of water to one of fruit and let stand over night. The next morning boil fast for 15 minutes. Let stand again for 24 hours. Then measure equal parts of sugar and fruit. Cook for one hour or a little longer. Then fill glasses and seal.

Rhubard Marmalade.

1 quart rhubarb
1 quart sugar
½ cup vinegar
1 cup small raisins

Cloves and cinnamon to suit taste.

Cook rhubarb with a little soda and drain in colander. Add other ingredients and cook 20 to 25 minutes.

This small cake is one that you will like.

Lazy Daisy Cake.

1 cup sugar
2 eggs (well beaten)
1 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
½ cup milk
1 Tbsp. butter (or less)

Warm the milk in which you have the butter, mix in order of reading, alternating the flour and milk. Bake in an 8 by 8 inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes

A nice caramel icing can be made by mixing together 12 tbsp. brown sugar, 2 Tbsp. creama nd 2 Tbsp. butter. Mix one cup of cocoanut with this if you like or after spreading the mixture over cake sprinkle with ¾ cup pecan nut meats.

Place under your broiling unit five or six minutes—taking care to have the cake at least two and one-half inches away. This cooks and browns just enough to give a nice flavor.

Apricot Conserve.

½ pound dried apricots
1 can shredded pineapple
½ pound almond nut meats
1½ cup sugar

Soak apricots 30 minutes or so in warm water. Wash and cook until very tender and rub through a colander. Add pineapple and sugar Cook 45 minutes, then cool partially before adding nut meats.

Would you like to have an easy recipe for chocolate brownies. These will be nice to serve with cooling drinks for warmer days.

Chocolate Brownies.

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar (white)
½ cup sugar (brown)
2 eggs
⅓ cup milk
2 ounces of chocolate
½ cup of flour
½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup nut meats.

Cream the shortening—add the sugar and cream together. Beat the eggs and mix. Stir in milk, melt chocolate and add. Sift all dry ingredients into creamed mixture Add nut meats Pour in a shallow pan 9 by 13 and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes When you remove from oven cut in bars

Taste Picker-Upper

Add diced celery to your next dish of macaroni and cheese. A third of a cup of celery will be enough for three cups of macaroni and cheese

Refrigerator 'Baked' Pie

Perhaps in your home, pie favorites run true to form—apple, lemon cream and chocolate—but in mine the chocolate flavor wins, hands down. And when it's the kind of a chocolate pie that bakes in the refrigerator the day before it is to be served, it wins the chief cook's vote, too.

Here's how to make mallow chocolate pie:

½ cup cocoa
¾ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup milk
3 packettes (¾ lb.) marshmallows
2 bananas, sliced lengthwise.
6 marshmallows, cut in half crosswise.

Halves of marshmallows atop strips of sliced bananas make a different topping.

Basic Recipe, Hints On Syrup To Prepare Tasty Flapjacks

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Griddle cakes by any name—flapjack, batter, hot, pan or flannel cakes—are among the season's most popular breakfast and luncheon dishes.

Careful mixing, proper cooking, prompt serving and tasty toppings are essential.

Corn Meal Griddle Cakes
(Makes Twelve Cakes)

1 nine-ounce package dry mincemeat (1¼ cups)
¼ cup cold water
1 cup sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup corn meal
1½ cups milk
1 egg
¼ cup melted butter or other shortening

Break mincemeat into pieces. Add cold water. Place over heat and stir until lumps are thoroughly broken up. Bring briskly to boil. Continue boiling until mixture is almost dry. Allow to cool. Sift flour once. Measure. Add baking powder and salt and sift again. Mix with corn meal. Add milk and egg and beat vigorously. Add melted butter and mix quickly. Fold in cooled mincemeat. Drop griddle cake batter by spoonfuls onto a hot, greased griddle. Cook turning each cake when it is browned on bottom. Serve with butter and sugar or maple syrup.

Most experts prefer to cook on a rimless griddle. It's much easier, they say, to turn the cakes when there's no interference at the sides. A frying pan, however, may be used. And an electric grill which bakes the cakes right at the table is very convenient.

The griddle won't need to be greased—if there's enough fat in the batter. To find if the utensil is hot enough drop a teaspoon of water on it. If the water dances, you can go to work.

It's easier to control the size of the cakes if you pour the batter from a wide-mouthed pitcher or dip a large-bowled spoon into the pan of batter.

The cakes should be turned only once. Wait until bubbles form, then turn up one corner to see if the bottom is brown enough to flip the pancake.

Clean the griddle with soft, crushed paper after each baking.

To vary the batter, add half a cupful of any one of the following to a full recipe of batter: chopped, cooked ham, veal or bacon; boiled rice, corn, hominy, mashed cooked vegetables, left-over cereal, nuts, dates, dried fruit or grated cheese.

If you add blueberries, use less milk. (A cup and a half will do in place of two cups.' If you substitute sour milk for sweet, add a teaspoon of soda to each cup of milk, but don't use baking powder.

Maple Syrup Et Al.

Generally, when you think of griddle cakes you think of syrup along with them. Maple syrup is the favorite. But there are several appetizing substitutes you can serve for variety's sake. Among them are:

CARAMEL SYRUP—Melt a cup of granulated sugar in a frying pan. Stir constantly and add a cup of boiling water. Boil the mixture slowly until the sugar has dissolved.

HOME-MADE SYRUP—Boil two cups of sugar and two cups of water together for about five minutes. (Substitute brown or maple sugar if it is handy'

JELLIES AND JAMS—Serve them as is or add one-fourth of a cup of boiling water to each cup of sweet jelly to make it spread more readily. Tart flavors such as gooseberry, apple butter, raspberry, quince, currant, plum or pineapple are best. Or you can serve fruit pudding sauces, warm or cold; fresh or cooked fruits; or honey.

Here's a good basic griddle cake recipe.

3 cups pastry flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons fat, melted
2 egg yolks
2 cups milk
2 egg whites, beaten
½ cup broken pecans

Mix ingredients and bake on a hot griddle

Griddle Cakes

In baking griddle cakes rub the hot griddle frequently with salt tied firmly in a piece of cloth. The griddle will then be freed of bits of extra batter and the griddle cakes will not be so likely to stick.

Magnifying Glass

Keep several small magnifying glasses handy. Fasten one on a cord to the telephone book. Stick another into your purse for reading programs, notes or shopping lists

Glaze 'Em

To glaze waffles, spread each one, after it is baked, with melted butter and a little granulated or confectioner's sugar. Then slip it under the broiler for a minute.

To remove cod liver oil stains from clothing apply a tablespoonful of banana oil mixed with a toblespoon of soapy water. After five minutes or so wash the stained article in warm water and soap suds. Then rinse it thoroughly.

A faint suggestion of garlic is a magic touch to many a vegetable salad. Just brush a clove of garlic quickly around the salad bowl, or the dressing bowl.

MARKET TILTS DOWNWARD IN SLOW OPENING

Leading Issues Dip Moderately Without Being Subjected to Great Pressure.

NEW YORK — Without being subjected to any great pressure, leading stocks ulted moderately downward in today's market. Bonds lost rising vigor and commodities generally were in arrears.

Market analysts found little encouragement in the weekly survey of the magazine "Steel" which said consumers were displaying no tendency to stock up for the future, covering only current needs and, wherever possible, resorting to inventory.

At the same time the survey added that "factors in a mid-year revival are found in the new model season for automobiles, specifications for steel for an unusual volume of naval and private shipbuilding already placed and the hope that government aid may bring additional railroad purchasing."

JANE'S BACK AND HAPPY ABOUT IT

Week on Press Was Fun, But She Prefers Reporting in Town Like Mansfield.

definitely as on a small paper, there are reams of good copy and good stories that never get into the paper at all, or only into one edition. Day after day a good reporter may get only one story in the paper, and there are days when he doesn't get any which would shatter my morale. It's too much like planting a garden you know will never grow

You may be sent out after a good story with pictures and you break your neck and the speed laws to get it and get back in time to write it for an edition—and then it doesn't get in because something more important has come up in the meantime to crowd it out!

There is a much closer co-ordination between writers and city desk on a small paper, and there certainly is a closer alliance between writers and their reading public. You could write good stories for years on a paper like the Press and they would never be mentioned to you outside your office associates and your immediate circle of friends, but, good or bad, on The News-Journal you hear from the general public on every one.

* * *

I wrote several golden wedding anniversary stories for the Press. They must not run over two short paragraphs—about ten or 12 lines of printed matter. Social agencies and welfare groups are lucky to get anything in the paper other than their drives for funds. Benefits and lectures rate about a paragraph

I interviewed Virginia Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard college of Columbia university, and Ada Comstock, president of Radcliff college—and they rated about two paragraphs each in print. Although distinguished educators, they were not particularly important to the great mass of Cleveland readers The Cleveland torso murders rate several columns because a million persons are interested

Because I was a visiting fireman on the Press, my copy probably was given more consideration than it would have been had I been permanently on the staff I had two 'by-line' stories on several days and three or four stories every day except one On Saturday I had twice as much copy in the paper as any one else on the staff But I turned out less work last week than I ever have on The News-Journal in any one week

* * *

On the other hand Helen Allyn was just as glad to get back home as I am—so she could rest up a bit after the busiest week she ever had in a newspaper office

She loved Mansfield and The News-Journal But she panted on my shoulder so much and her work like that and they'd lay me to bed for days [illegible] conscience with the feeling [illegible] that all of her [illegible]

[illegible] I think, is a good [illegible] for the papers I missed the CCC camp [illegible]

Pastor 'Forgiven' For Taking Sunday Off To Go Fishing

SPRINGFIELD, Vt — (AP) —A trout fishing Vermont Methodist minister, who left a supply preacher in his pulpit while he went fly-casting on the Sabbath, has been forgiven

In addition, Rev Lawrence Larrowe, 34-year-old pastor of the Springfield Methodist church, knows he was not the only member of the congregation who pursued the Waltonian pastime on the opening day of the trout season

When the chairman of a special trustees' meeting considering the pastor's conduct asked what other communicants did a week ago Sunday several replied they also were snaring wily trout

A 37 to 1 vote of the trustees, absolving the pastor of misconduct was applauded by the congregation yesterday More than half of the trustees are women

The clergyman, who attended services at another church after he had caught eight trout, explained he gave his fish to needy families

Urge Roosevelt to Stump Against New Deal Enemies

PUT PROGRAM UP TO NATION, NORRIS SAYS

Nebraska Senator Suggests Radio, Speaking Tour to Let Voters Decide.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Some of President Roosevelt's supporters in congress proposed today that he stump the country this summer in an attempt to defeat legislators who have opposed his policies.

They cited the renomination last Tuesday of Senator Pepper (D-Fla) as evidence that the power of the White House still is great at the ballot box, despite any insurgency in congress.

Early in the Florida Democratic primary James Roosevelt, the president's son and secretary, said Pepper should be returned to the senate. It was one of three direct "blessings" the White House has given senatorial candidates. The others were bestowed by the president on Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky and Sen. F. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin.

Urge 'Bold Course.'

Administration supporters have contended Pepper's victory demonstrates that Mr. Roosevelt should strike a bold course by carrying his policies directly to the country in the primaries as well as in the general election in the fall.

Advisers of this procedure, chief among whom is Senator Norris (Ind-Neb), argued also that prompt action would minimize chances of a complete split between the Democratic party leadership and the La Follettes' new liberal party.

Norris said the president "can either take the stump—by radio—and tell the people that those who have opposed him ought to be defeated or he can be partisan and say that all Democrats ought to be re-elected."

Should Mr. Roosevelt follow the latter method, he said, he would face defeat on major issues in the next congress.

"If I were the president," Norris added, "I would go on the radio and say that a whole lot of Democrats had been elected on my platform and had turned reactionary, and that these Democrats, aligned with Republicans, had succeeded in defeating some of my program and in modifying some.

Elect 'Believers.'

"Then I would say that if the people believed in my program they should elect a congress that believes in it, regardless of whether its is Democratic, Republican, Progressive or Socialist. If the people were opposed to the program they could vote against the candidates that support it.

"But we ought not to let men creep in under a party label and then thwart the president's program."

Grandmother At 34, Has 'Finest' Holiday Sunday

Mrs. Carl Zeigler, 34, of 76 Grandview avenue, is Mansfield's youngest grandmother, according to the results of the search for her which was conducted by Manager Wayne Williams of the Majestic theater.

Mrs. Zeigler was married when she was 18 years old—in fact, on her birthday—and her daughter, Mrs. Luella Sobek, was married when she was 15. The Sobeks have a young baby and reside with the grandparents.

Yesterday the "youngest grandmother" was honored on Mother's day by several Mansfield concerns. She and her husband (of course he's a young grandfather, too, but grandfathers don't count on Mother's day) were guests of the Towne House for dinner, were guests of the Majestic theater in the afternoon and were transported to and from home in an Arrow cab.

Mrs. Zeigler had her photo made at Buell-Kraft studio; Rogers Jewelry company presented her with a cocktail set; Kafer's Flower Shoppe gave her an armful of roses; she received a gift of lingerie from the Holly Shop, and a box of candy from Bates.

It was her first Mother's day as a grandmother, and what with the entertainment and gifts heaped on her, it was, she said, "the nicest day I've had in years."

It is wound up once a week, when Pasheilich climbs to the tower, and it takes 20 minutes of winding to bring the heavy weights back to original positions so that they will keep the clock going for another week.

METZENBAUM IN PRIMARY RACE

Becomes Candidate for Ohio Lieutenant Governor With Blast at Administration.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—Opening his campaign with a blast at the present state administration, former State Senator James Metzenbaum today sought the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Metzenbaum, attorney for the recent senate graft investigating committee, announced he was seeking the position because he felt his personal affairs "should yield to what may be best for the state."

"During the last three years," he said, "under the present state administration, public affairs have sunk to so unfortunate a level that it will require untold efforts to restore the state to the position it should rightly occupy.

"In this, the legislature will need to play a large and constructive part during the next two years.

"In addition, there should be complete harmony between the senate and the house in order that the very best results may be obtained for the public welfare.

"The work of clearing up the conditions exposed by the recent senate investigating committee must be carried on."

YOUNGTOWN—(INS)—State Senator Ralph J. Seidner announced today that he would not be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

16TH RADIUM POISON VICTIM JOINS 'LIVING DEAD' SOCIETY

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—The membership in the so-called "Society of the Living Dead" was increased to 16 today.

Mrs. Romilda Delaney Bierman, 35, of Peru, Ill., has joined the appeal of 15 Ottawa women for industrial compensation from the Radium Dial company.

With the others, she charges she contracted radium poisoning while employed by the firm from 1921 to 1924. The company's plant, which was formerly located at Ottawa has since been moved to New York.

According to Attorney Leonard J. Grossman, representing the "society" in a joint claim against the company, Mrs. Bierman had only recently been informed by physicians that she was suffering from the malady.

She sought $6,750 damages and $300 a year for life in compensation, according to the plea drawn by Attorney Grossman to be filed today.

Mrs. Catherine Donohue, who has wasted from 135 to 71 pounds in seven years, was recently granted $2 500 damages and a life pension in addition to medical expenses by the commission.

The company agreed to accept her's as a test case but announced the decision will be contested through the courts, with the final settlement probably a matter of more than a year.

Several doctors have given Mrs. Donohue but a few months to live. Nine other women formerly employed in the factory have died, allegedly from the poison contracted by tipping radium paint brushes between their lips.

LEAGUE TO HEAR ETHIOPIAN PLEA ON RECOGNITION

Emperor to Make Personal Appeal, Picks Advisors to Aid Him in Battle.

(By United Press)

GENEVA—Emperor Haile Selassie started a dramatic last hour fight before the League of Nations today to prevent world recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

To the consternation of statesmen gathered for the 101st session of the League of Nations council, it was announced that Ethiopia would fight to the end.

It was believed that the emperor himself was waiting to make a personal appearance before the council, an unwelcome ghost at the recognition banquet table.

Forms Formidable Group.

For his fight against a British plan to obtain the council's blessing for recognition of Ethiopia's conquest by Italy—an essential part of the British-Italian friendship treaty—the emperor had quietly organized one of the most formidable groups of advisers on record, to aid him.

Sir Norman Angell, world famous economist and Nobel peace prize winner; Prof. H. Stanley Jevons, British political economist; Prof. J. L. Bierly of London, and Prof. Gaston Jeze, of the University of Paris, president of the International Institute of Public Law and the foremost French expert in international law, aided L. A. Taezas and Ephrem T. Medhen, Ethiopian government delegates, in the fight.

Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, realizing that he faced a fight, gracefully abandoned his plan to prevent the appearance of an Ethiopian representative at the council table. He realized that the votes of Russia and China, if no other nations, would make it impossible to pass the necessary unanimous resolution releasing league members from their obligation not to recognize Italy's conquest. Instead, he sought a statement by the council president, Vilhelms Munters of Latvia, summarizing the viewpoints of those powers which favor recognition of Italy's conquest.

FOUND DROWNED

Millersburg Watchman Dies in Pool at Plant.

MILLERSBURG—Coroner W. C. Wild today delivered a verdict of accidental drowning in the death of Earl Harvey Clark, 52, night watchman at the Briar Hill Stone company, nine miles southwest of here.

Clark was found dead in a 54-inch pool of water near the plant at 7:30 a. m. today by workmen. The coroner said that he believed Clark fell from the narrow bridge spanning the pool while making his rounds sometime after 4:30 a. m. when he had made his last visit to the call boxes.

An employe of the company for 30 years, Clark is survived by his wife, Lola, and four sons, Fremont, Novle, Chester and Emmett, all of this vicinity.

The body was removed to the Elliott funeral home in Millersburg. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Farley Takes Beating at Hands of Roosevelt But He Still Remains Loyal

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Jim and Joe.

Jim Farley.

Joe Jacobs.

Both in the fight business.

Jim the prize fight commissioner and politician.

Joe the little hustler, known as Yussel the Muscle.

Joe saw a young fellow coming along. Strong, tough, ambitious, determined but cold. He saw Max Schmeling.

"String along with me, kid, and you'll be champion."

Schmeling strung along with Yussel.

Jim saw a young politician coming along. A New Yorker. A Roosevelt. Tough ,ambitious but cold.

"String along with me, kid and you'll be president."

Franklin D. Roosevelt strung along with Jim.

* * *

We in the prize fight business had seen the careers of Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, of Gene Tunney and Billy Gibson.

Kearns had been disinherited. Gibson had been disinherited.

Schmeling became champion, but meantime there had been changes in German political life. Joe was a Jewish boy, and Schmeling was an Aryan, blue-eyed German with black, bristly hair and squinty, black eyes.

As time marched, Joe had to go to Germany. And though now disinherited and hating Max Schmeling, who hated and missed no occasion to humiliate him, Joe got into the ring in Germany and stood in mocking respectfulness while tribute was paid to Hitler and to everything that was knifing the very heart of Joe Jacobs and his mother. He stood thus with his hat on and with a cigar in his mouth, which was magnificent, if unintentional, insult to Schmeling and Hitlerism.

* * *

As time marched on, Franklin D. Roosevelt became president and Jim Farley went to Washington. Jim didn't belong there. Jim was over his head in Washington. He was just a nice, sincere organization Democrat. He believed that being a Democrat meant playing the game, distributing the jobs and doing as the Republicans had done.

But Mr. Roosevelt also began to develop ideas way over the head of his friend and manager, Jim Farley. At first Jim used to see him all the time. They were pals.

* * *

In the career of Max Schmeling, after he became a big man, there have been faults for which little Yussel has had to take the blame. In the career of Mr. Roosevelt, since he became president, there have been faults for which Jim Farley takes the blame. There was Farleyism. Jim took the blame for Farleyism, although it was Roseveltism, as he and Mr. Roosevelt privately knew, and the rest of us in the racket understood. There was that airmail-and-the-army thing. Twelve boys died. Jim took the fall for that, although the country knew that Jim wouldn't have ordered those boys into the air, unprepared as they were to fly the mails, on his own account. What did Jim know about the airmail or the flyability of the army's pilots or its stuff? Jim was a prize fight commissioner, a politician and a builder's supply man.

* * *

Schmeling repudiated, humiliated and, in all but the official legal sense, discredited Yussel.

Mr. Farley's champion started running with a set of new-found friends who regarded Jim as a person of inferior intellect and political caste.

Mr. Roosevelt set up a political Aryan to run against Jim for governor of New York state, the job on which Jim had set his heart. Mr. Roosevelt's man, Mr. Jackson, was quickly knocked over, but nevertheless his gratitude to the man with whom he had strung along to become president was expressed there.

Two days ago Mr. Farley stood up in meeting and denounced the foes of his man, President Roosevelt. Still loyal, still the manager, though discredited and humiliated.

He gave the salute, but let me hope that, like little Yussel the Muscle in Hamburg, he kept his hat on and didn't take the cigar out of his mouth.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Four Men and a Prayer" is a globe-trotting adventure. It sounds notes reminiscent of "Beau Geste" and again of "The Three Musketeers" but winds up on its own power as a pretty good movie.

The four men are George Sanders, David Niven, William Henry and the new English young man, Richard Greene. The prayer is not, as one might assume, the beaute-* ous and heavily wardrobed Loretta Young, but an earnest resolve to "get" the intriguers who discredited and later murdered the boys' army officer father (C. Aubrey Smith).

Jumping back and forth from England to America to India to South America to Egypt, the story packs a great deal more power and suspense in its early and middle stages than at the end. But it offers excitement enough, and there is a good deal of light comedy supplied by Niven, Bill Henry and Miss Young. Director John Ford seldom lets Loretta or her wardrobe hide the adventurous aspects of his tale, and he presents one whale of a sequence in which J. Edward Bromberg shows the kind of acting Hollywood isn't using enough.

The new boy, Greene, was taken to the ladies' hearts for his looks as well as capable performance, but in the acting department George Sanders is the stand-out, with David Niven uncommonly good in a blend of serious and comic characterization.

* * *

"Stolen Heaven" is unusual in its combination of classical music with a fast cops-and-robbers melodrama. Gene Raymond and Olympe Bradna play the jewel thieves who, making their escape from pursuing police, seek refuge in a woodland home which turns out to be the abode of an aged concert pianist (Lewis Stone). Over Olympe's soft-hearted objections, Gene persuades the faltering old man to stage a comeback, a plan which would give Gene and company a chance at money to make good their escape.

Director Andrew L. Stone's use of music—Liszt, Chopin et al—to further his story is interesting. Miss Bradna acts more like Snow White than like a tough adventuress, but she has charm and sings and dances well.

* * *

"Doctor Rhythm," one suspects on sober reflection, is really not Bing Crosby's best picture but it seems so at very frequent intervals in its running. Based on an O. Henry story, "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon," it sometimes forsakes plausibility for convenience as when a hunted crook (Fred Keating) appears at a policeman's benefit to get the girl (Mary Carlisle) whom he doesn't really love. This makes it possible for O'Roon (Andy Devine) and the young doctor masquerading as O'Roon (Bing) to capture him in a garrison finish.

Frank Tuttle's clever direction helps, but what sets "Doctor Rhythm" apart for us is the distinctive comedy of Beatrice Lillie, here making a triumphant return to pictures where once, nine years ago, nobody understood her. When Miss Lillie goes shopping for "two dozen double damask dinner napkins," and the clerk is Franklin Pangborn, the house is likely to react as the preview audience did, with sustained hysteria.

Bing himself goes pleasantly through the usual romance with the leading lady, croons to his fans' taste, and breaks precedent by kissing the girl—once.

Tunic Style Feature of Formals

The tunic, shown above, is the newest type of the two-piece dress. We see tunic jumpers, tunic boleros and tunic jackets. A pure white organdie gown in cut-out embroidery design, has a slim tunic. The material has a lace-like effect which is very distinguished. The dress is made on slender, high-waisted lines, with full sweeping skirt and low-cut decolletage. It is charmingly transformed for dinner wear by a tubular tunic of self-fabric, which is kept smoothly closed by a matching slide fastener running from the hem to the becoming points of a high neck. Short cape sleeves add softness through the widened shoulders of the jacket, and a wide opened rose with buds and long stem, make a charming decoration at the shoulder.

RICHLAND FAIR BOARD SIGNS UP ATTRACTIONS

Vaudeville Acts, 'Thrill Show,' Other Amusements Booked for Farm Festival in July.

Pushing ahead with plans to get the county fair program completed, the Richland County Agricultural society today had completed contract negotiations for amusement and entertainment attractions.

H. H. Wolf, president, announced that a contract has been signed with the Gus Sun Vaudeville agency of Springfield for an open-air stage production on two nights of the three-day fair which opens July 27 and continues through July 29.

A "thrill show" has been booked for the opening day's program, Wolf announced. Daredevil automobile drivers and motorcycle riders connected with the Ward Beam "Thrill Show" will appear on the one evening.

The contract for carnival amusement devices was awarded the Seccaium Park Amusement company. Five rides have been arranged for the fair.

Other amusements and attractions are to be booked later.

Repeat Pulling Contest.

At their meeting Saturday night at the courthouse fair board directors decided to repeat the horse-pulling contest which proved an outstanding attraction at last year's show.

Clarence Tugend, in charge of the pulling contest, said prizes totaling $200 will be offered. The contest is limited to Richland county horses. There will be two divisions, one for lightweight horses, those weighing up to 3,001 pounds, and a heavyweight division for animals exceeding the lightweight weight.

B. H. Huston, directing the three-day harness racing program, which is being built into the fair's biggest drawing card, reported that horse entries will exceed those of any previous fair.

Because of the early fair dates, the races here will open the season for many outstanding pacers and trotters who will be taken to other fairs and grand circuit meetings after the program here is completed, Huston said. Richland's fair will be the first in Ohio this year.

The board also decided on admission fees for the fair. Twenty-five cents will be charged for a single admission. Special "membership tickets" to be sold in advance of the fair will entitle the holder to six admissions for $1.00.

"Membership tickets" will be honored as gate and grandstand admissions and are good for automobile parking privileges inside the grounds.

FORD COMPANY SCORES IN NLRB COURT BATTLE

U. S. Tribunal Forbids Board to Withdraw Records in Case Against Firm.

(By Associated Press)

COVINGTON, Ky.—The Ford Motor company won in the sixth U. S. circuit court of appeals today an amended court order forbidding the National Labor Relations board to withdraw records of its case against the firm.

The effect of the decision, said chief Ford counsel Frederick H. Wood of New York, would be to prevent the labor board from vacating its order of last Dec. 22, and would permit hearing of the case before the court.

Wood charged in oral arguments preceding the court's action that it was "perfectly obvious" that the board, if permitted to withdraw its record of the case, did not intend to give a "full and free hearing" of the case prior to an announced intention of producing new findings.

Appears For Board.

Philip G. Phillips, ninth regional director for the NLRB with offices in Cincinnati, appeared for the board.

Phillips contended that since Friday, when the board received a certified copy of the court's order permitting withdrawal of the record, it had "taken jurisdiction" and had "given notice to Ford that the order would be vacated" on Tuesday.

Judge Xen Hicks, one of three members of the court hearing the case, interposed that "all the court did last week was to give permission to withdraw (records). Nothing was said about jurisdiction."

Wood earlier had telegraphed the board that he would seek stay of the court's order "pending" application to the supreme court or any other court of competent jurisdiction for relief from the said order and pending decision upon any such application."

The company contended it did not receive a full and fair opportunity to contest findings in the original order. It based its fight on the supreme court's recent decision vacating an order of the secretary of agriculture on the grounds that the appellant was not permitted to present its case fully.

Police Save Woman's $3,500 From Mystic But She's Angry

SHELBY — Police Chief Leroy Coffey and his force received only a verbal lashing from a Shelby woman Saturday night as their thanks for preventing her from losing her life savings, $3,500, to a fortune teller with a carnival company showing in the city.

Insisting that she wanted to turn her money over to the mystic who had promised to "double" it, the woman upbraided the police after they locked her savings in the safe at the police station until the carnival left town.

Explaining that she had received two dollars for one from the fortune teller, the woman said she was told it would "take a little more time" for the larger amount to bedoubled. The intended victim, whose name was withheld, drew her money from a bank and took it to her home where a friend learned of her intentions and called police.

The woman told police the mystic promised to use a handkerchief trick to "double" the money, but that it would require until Monday to complete the "act of magic." The carnival left the city Saturday night.

Police questioned the fortune teller, but found no specific charge to place against her, Coffey said. She was permitted to leave the city with the carnival.

SENATE PASSES RECOVERY BILL

Approves $5,330,000,000 Tax Measure; House OK Seen for Tomorrow.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With lightning speed, the senate today approved the conference report on the $5,330,000,000 "national recovery" tax bill and sent it to the house for its certain approval, probably tomorrow.

Senate action was completed in exactly four minutes from the time Senator Pat Harrison (D) Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee, called up the measure to which is pinned high hopes for business recovery. There is no record vote on the final senate action.

First, a motion by Harrison to call up the report was adopted without a dissenting vote. Then Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, one of the Republican conferees, announced that he and Senator Capper (R) Kansas, had signed the conference report, because they considered the bill "a step forward toward sanity in taxation."

Vandenberg said Capper joined him in protesting retention of the undistributed profits tax, even in the modified form finally approved. But he said this levy had been so substantially modified with a two-year limitation upon its life, that complete repeal was likely later.

Revision of the capital gains and losses levy in existing law were praised by Vandenberg.

board to fix the standards.

Wants Minimum Wage.

"I am more interested in creating a minimum wage than in attempting just now to fix minimum hours," Borah said.

Senator Harrison (D.-Miss.) said he believed a wage-hour bill which did not fix a differential between the north and the south would encounter stiff opposition in the senate. The house bill omits any differential.

Before leaving Charleston, S. C., yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his gratification that a majority of the house had signed the petition to wrest the wage-hour bill from the hostile rules committee.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Inspector Boyce coughed slightly.

"If you were feeling up to it, sir, what I would suggest would be for you and Mr. Somers to go along with me to see the Chief Constable—

"I don't feel up to it," said Dr. Hammond bitterly. "I feel very ill. I require strong stimulant, a nice hot bath, and a complete change of clothing. But I'm a martyr to duty."

A hail came up from the quarry. The Inspector went and looked over the edge.

"Found him?" he called out.

"Yes, sir."

"Dead?"

"Yes, sir"

"Well, that's going to save everyone a lot of trouble," said Dr. Hammond.

* * *

"Darling, I think it went off too marvelously," said Sylvia Colesborough. She shed her grey fur coat and leaned back in the sofa corner. "Algy darling, ring for tea, will you. I couldn't think anyone could ask so many questions as that coroner did. But he was rather sweet too Didn't you think it was rather sweet of him to say he quite understood how upset I must be feeling?"

Gay giggled—she couldn't help it. The giggle slid off into something like a sob. They had just come back from an inquest upon two murdered men and the man who had murdered them, and Sylvia was talking as if she had been opening a bazaar. Sylvia would.

Gay shivered, and was glad when Algy came and sat on the arm of the big chair and put a hand on her shoulder. It had been perfectly horrible, but at least Algy was cleared, and Sylvia was apparently going to get off scot free. She had given her evidence with a good deal of inconsequent charm. She had looked ethereally lovely in her black. Her voice had faltered in all the right places, and she had wept when she described the scene in the yew walk. The coroner had asked her a great many questions, but neither he nor anyone else had so much as mentioned the home secretary's lost memorandum. As far as this inquest went, it had never been stolen, and Lady Colesborough could not be supposed to have known of its existence.

She had been blackmailed by Mr. Zero on account of a card debt which she did not want to confess to her husband. Sylvia had been very convincing about this. She told the Coroner just how difficult she found it to remember what were trumps. A tear fell when she admitted that Francis had forbidden her to play. And she had played. And she had lost. Two hundred and fifty pounds. And she had been so dreadfully afraid that Mr. Zero would tell Francis. So she had taken some letters out of her husband's safe And so forth and so on. Not a word about the visit to Wellings and the home secretary's despatch-case. The coroner led her gently but firmly through the pathetic tale. Sylvia left the court with the admiration and sympathy of everyone present. Tomorrow the press would feature her as the lovely Lady Colesborough. Really it wasn't surprising that she should heave that gentle sigh and say how marvelous it had all gone off.

"Monty's been marvelous too," said Algy, for Gay's ear

Gay stuck her chin in the air "I don't see what he's got to be marvelous about."

"Well, it hasn't been all jam for him. He offered to resign, you know, but they wouldn't let him. By the way, it puzzled me how Brewster could have known that Monty had got that memorandum and was taking it down to Wellings.

"You see, we were in the library, Carstairs, Brewster, and myself and Monty was up in his room. Carstairs went out into the hall, took the envelope from the messenger, and gave it to me to take up to Monty. That's what started them suspecting me. I had the handling of it. I knew what it was. I could have substituted the blank envelope which was found in the suitcase at Wellings, or I could have rung up someone who was going to Wellings and told them to go ahead, the paper would be there. Now Brewster was doing statistics at the far end of the library. He never had a smell of the paper, and as far as my knowledge went he couldn't have known that it had arrived, or that Monty had taken it with him."

* * *

Gay shivered. She didn't want to talk about Mr. Brewster—who was Mr. Zero—who was dead.

She said rather faintly, "How did he know?"

"Carstairs told him. Beautifully simple—isn't it? Carstairs approved of Brewster. He didn't approve of me, chiefly because I'm Monty's cousin and his Roman soul abhors the thought of family interest. Therefore he was quite sure that if anyone was playing the fool it must be me. Very hot on the trail was Carstairs, and he never said a word about having told Brewster that the memorandum had come and that Monty was taking it to Wellings until Brewster had blown his brains out, and he couldn't go on approving of him any more. Mind you, he really did think I'd taken the damned thing. He's vindictive, but he's honest. And now I step into Brewster's shoes, and he'll never cease regretting him."

Sylvia, changing the subject abruptly, said, "I suppose you really are engaged?"

A little flame burned in Gay's cheeks. "I've been telling you so about twenty times a day ever since it happened."

"I know, darling, but people do say these things—don't they?"

Algy looked across at her with a sparkle in his eye. "We have Monty's blessing, I have written to all my relations, we have cabled the glad news to Gay's parents, Aunt Agatha is in process of being de-iced, and there will be an announcement in the Times tomorrow. If there is anything else you can suggest—"

Sylvia smiled a little vaguely. Algy sometimes made her feel as if he was laughing at her, and she found that rather confusing, because there was nothing to laugh at. She began to think about what she would wear at the wedding. Not black—but they mustn't get married too soon. She said in a plaintive voice,

"How long will it be before I can come to your wedding? I mean, I wouldn't like to do anything that wasn't right. I mean, poor Francis — well, you know what I mean."

THE END.

BURNS FATAL TO EX-RESIDENT

Services for Carl Bachelor Held In Newark Today.

Funeral services for Carl E Bachelor, 44, of Newark, a former Mansfield resident, who died in Bethesda hospital at Zanesville Friday from burns sustained 10 days ago, were held at 2 p. m. today in Newark. Burial was in Cedar Hill cemetery, Newark.

Mr. Bachelor, former employe of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, was burned April 28 when he attempted to save a spare tire from his truck which had caught fire. The blaze caused the gasoline tank to explode, igniting his clothing.

Besides his widow, Etta, Mr. Bachelor is survived by his father, three brothers and two sisters, all of Newark, another brother in McKeesport, Pa., and a niece, Mrs. Louise Reece of Mansfield.

WARNS DEALERS

Liquor Board Points to Size Limit for Indoor Signs.

Richland county liquor dealers, along with others throughout the state, were warned today by the state liquor control board that they must remove all indoor beer and liquor signs exceeding in size the limit or 324 square inches prescribed by law.

Wellington T. Leonard, formerly of Mansfield, a member of the board, said that distillers and permit holders had been given until June 15 to clear out all oversized signs, and that the "board really means business," dispatches from Columbus added.

Leonard was quoted as saying that permit holders failing to abide by the ruling would be subject to the loss or suspension of their permits, and that products of violating distillers might be banned from the state.

"The distillers themselves asked that indoor signs be limited to 324 square inches," Leonard said, "and now we're going to see that they live up to their own request. On June 15 we'll send a group of inspectors into their establishments and violators will be cited before the board. And we're not fooling."

FAIL TO CLAIM $18,000 IN OLD AGE PAYMENTS

400 in Six-County District Leave Social Security Funds Idle.

Approximately $18,000 is waiting at the federal Social Security office in Washington for nearly 400 residents of the six-county Mansfield district who are entitled to collect lump sums accumulated under the Social Security act since Jan. 1, 1837, R. G. Mish, manager of the local field office revealed today.

Mish pointed out that there is no way to locate these people. They are entitled to an average of $43 each.

"Some are heirs of men and women who have died since the act became effective on Jan. 1, 1937," he said. "Others are elderly people who have passed the age of 65 and have a lump sum credited to their account because of money paid in by themselves and their employers."

Below Estimate.

It was estimated that nearly 600 persons would file claims in the Mansfield district during the past year, but only 236 claims were certified here. Educational efforts of the local staff have increased the number of claims steadily, Mish said, and the volume handled the first quarter of 1938 is more than double that of last year.

The local security office has reported an increase in issuing social security numbers and replacement cards. Since Jan. 1, approximately 2,400 new numbers have been issued to workers in this area comprising Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Marion, Morrow and Wyandot counties.

Mish explained that each local office aids persons entitled to small claims by eliminating the 50-cent fees for death certificates and the 25-cent fees for notaries substituting a signed statement from a funeral director or physician and using a specially prepared form.

EARLY SEASON TO HELP CORN

Weather Favorable, Richland Farmers Have Planting Well Under Way.

Favored by an early growing season, Richland county farmers already have their corn planting well under way, several weeks ahead of last year, according to County Agent George B. Ganyard

With favorable weather conditions, planting will virtually be completed in two weeks, Ganyard said Because of continued rain last May, planting was not finished until the end of the month or early in June.

In contrast to last year, early planted corn this season will be hindered at the start unless there is more rain within the next few days, Ganyard predicted

While the lack of rain may have been of benefit to farmers in the northern sections of the county where drainage is difficult, the hilly areas south of Mansfield need more moisture for crops, he said

This year's corn acreage in the county is expected to be about the same as in 1937 when more than 32 000 acres were planted. As much as 36,000 acres of corn has been grown in the county in a season The federal crops program will have little effect on this year's planting

ASKS $5,000 AS RESULT OF FALL

Mansfield Woman Seeks Damages For Injuries 2 Months Ago.

A suit for $5,000 personal damages for injuries she received in a fall downstairs two months ago had been filed in common pleas court today by Lizzie Randall, 72 East Sixth street, against Clarence Williams, 72 Benton street.

In her petition the plaintiff contends that she fell down a flight of stairs in an apartment owned by Williams when she caught the heel of her shoe in the stairs.

She suffered fractures of her left leg and severe injuries, her petition says. Williams is accused of negligence in failing to repair the stairway and have a handrail placed along the stairs. The plaintiff is represented by Atty. Van C. Cook.

Variety of Problems Answered

By VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Miss Virginia Lee: I am a young divorced woman, only 20. I was married for eight months. Two weeks after my divorce I met a young fellow and he has been taking me out steadily. I don't know what to do. Should I have told him that I am a divorced woman or shall I wait until he proposes to me?—C. W."

I think the honorable thing to do would be to tell the young man that you have been married and divorced. It probably will make no difference to him, unless his religion forbids him to wed a divorced woman. It is always well to be perfectly open and above board in such matters. Then there can be no embarrassing complications.

LONESOME PAL is a boy of 23. He fell in love with a girl of 17, and went with her for awhile, then, because she seemed so indifferent, he stopped going to see her. He tried going out with other girls, but could not seem to be satisfied. He drove over to her home town one night and tried to see her, but did not succeed. He heard, however, that the girl had been told a number of lies about his reputation by several persons who were jealous of their friendship.

"So please tell me what I should do, for she is the only girl I ever cared for in that way? Should I write her or should I go to see her again?"

I certainly wouldn't give her up easily, my boy. I would write her and tell her what you have heard, tell her you want to see her again and ask her if you can visit her. A girl who is worth loving in the way you care for her is worth making a great effort to win. I hope she tells you to come to see her and that you succeed in winning her love.

H. A. L. has several serious problems. She is 18 and has a stepfather. She has been very ill in the hospital and is still too sick to be up.

Every two weeks her stepfather comes home drunk early in the morning and turns the whole family out of doors. He is arrested, but next morning he is let go and laughs about the whole thing. She wants to know where he could be sent so he would learn a lesson.

Another thing, the house in which the family lives is very old and the roof leaks. The stepfather works for the landlord, and the latter tells them that they can move if they don't like the leaky roof, and then the father will lose his job.

Write to the health officer of your town at the city hall, H. A. L., and ask him to inspect the house. As to your stepfather's habit, could not your mother talk to the officers at police headquarters or to the judge before whom your stepfather appears, and tell them of the situation and ask their advice? Maybe a workhouse sentence would cure him of this habit, and maybe not. At any rate, men who are used to dealing with the people who have such faults should know best how to deal with them. I sincerely hope you will get well very soon, and that you will eventually have your own home away from such unpleasantness.

Mirrors should never be hung where the sun shines directly on them for any length of time. A mirror exposed to direct sunlight for some time becomes cloudy.

Your consomme or tomato bouillon will jell deliciously right in the can in the electric refrigerator, if you have not time to stir up your own. Give it a few drops of Worcestershire and a squeeze of lemon juice if you like high seasoning as a hot-weather tonic. A cheese cracker or a pretzel stick will not go amiss with it.

THEATER

SHORT Takes From Hollywood: Marlene Dietrich, now vacationing in Europe, will be back next fall to appear in two productions under the Columbia banner. Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone plan to go to Honolulu as soon as Jack completes his next assignment. Martha Raye plays the first straight role of her screen career in the new musical "Tropic Holiday" in which she appears as Ray Milland's romantically-minded secretary. George Raft is credited with having taught the Duke of Windsor to tango! Bing Crosby owns a string of race horses, but he seldom rides them . . . he prefers a golf course for exercise. Gary Cooper who recently left New York to prepare for his "Graustark" role, is adding a new wing to his California house.

Police—But No Arrests.

A Hollywood police force that never has made an arrest during the 25 years of its history appears in Doctor Rhythm, playing the Ohio today and tomorrow. The officers belong to an organization, strictly for use in motion pictures and have plenty of chance to show their training in the picture starring Bing Crosby, Beatrice Lillie and Mary Carlisle. The story, adapted from O. Henry's famous "Badge of Policeman O'Roon," casts Bing in the role of New York society doctor who turns policeman for a single day. Before 24 hours are up, he mixes love with business and finds time to croon a number of the tuneful hits, including "On the Sentimental Side."

Shuhplaettler Not a Dish.

If you've thought a "shuhplaettler" is something to put on the table, you'll change your mind when you see "Joy of Living" at the Madison today and tomorrow with Irene Dunne and Douglas Fairbanks. It's a dance from the Austrial Tyrol and is danced in the film by a dozen native Austrian dancers who do the routine while the stars drink a stein of beer. They really do it . . . and then Irene tries her luck at the intricate business of slapping heels. In the film, Irene is said to portray the easiest part she ever has had on the screen because her part is that of a successful musical comedy actress . . . a character that mirrors her real life career.

Off To Sea.

Before "Captain Courageous" was filmed, the 110-foot, two-masted schooner purchased for location shots, had sailed more than 8,000 miles. Opening tomorrow at the Majestic, the film was supervised by James B. Connelly, writer of Gloucester and New England stories, to insure authenticity of backgrounds, characterizations and costumes. On the location shooting trip, from Gloucester to Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and then down the New England coast and finally around to Los Angeles harbor, the schooner was accompanied by a fleet of two barges, a tugboat, and five speedboats. Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore share star honors. "Look Out For Love" is the other picture tomorrow.

Cadets and Kingdoms.

The lady of the taps and the man with the flying feet—Eleanor Powell and Ray Bolger—do the dance honors in "Rosalie" tomorrow at the Ritz theater. Against a background that jumps from West Point to the kingdom of Romanza, Nelson Eddy takes low notes and high notes while he's making cadet love to the Princess Rosalie. This film introduces Ilona Massey, Hungarian star, as Countess Brenda of the plot. Ballet dance numbers staged by Albertina Rasch include more than 500 ballet and tap dancers in the Gypsy and Tartar numbers at the Romanza Festival.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint.

Cottage Cheese Omelet
Parsley Potatoes
Buttered Cauliflower
"Garden Sass" Salad
Pineapple Tapioca Tea

It is a peculiar thing that so many people who are not permitted to eat meat on Friday dislike fish. I love fish, but there are, I am sorry to say, many who do not. The cottage cheese omelet is a dish that will take the place of fish and be nourishing and delicious. Make the "garden sass" salad of whatever garden greens you can obtain.

Today's Recipes.

Cottage Cheese Omelet — Four eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup cottage cheese, two tablespoons pimento, four tablespoons milk, one tablespoon butter. Whip egg whites until very stiff. Beat egg yolks well and add cottage cheese and other ingredients, except butter. Fold mixture into whites. Melt butter in frying pan and pour in mixture. Cook over slow fire until under side is a delicate brown, put into moderate oven to brown on top. Fold and serve. Serves four.

Pineapple Tapioca — One cup quick cooking tapioca, three cups of water (more if too thick). Cook until clear, stir in one and one-half cups sugar, take from fire and add juice of a lemon and one and one-half cans grated pineapple and the beaten whites of three eggs. Beat with wire egg beater 15 to 20 minutes. Serve in sherbet glasses with whipped cream. This pudding can be made the day before you are going to use it and will serve 20 persons.

A piece of waxed paper under a child's plate at the table is scarcely noticeable, yet saves the tablecloth in case of accidents. Though one may not have children this is good to remember when the young visitors come.

Beauties Offer Hints For Keeping Trim

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Walter Winchell in a recent article debunked a popular fallacy: "Actresses are more beautiful than the average woman. (They merely spend more time beautifying themselves.)"

Well, if that's right we thought it would be a great idea to do a column on some of the beauty secrets of our modern beauty stars. They certainly look like a million dollars, so their secrets should be good.

Katharine Hepburn pushes back the cuticle of her nails with a softening cream every night before retiring. She says that this method of nail care performs a two-fold duty because it is also soothing to the nerves to massage the fingertips.

Irene Dunne suggests this remedy for that pain in the back of your neck which comes from a strenuous day, whether it is rehearsing, acting or typing: Raise your head high, as though you were trying to see who was sitting three or four rows ahead of you. Then pivot your head around as far as it will go in a wide circle. This is worth mastering because you can relax with it any time of the day, no matter where you happen to be.

If you pluck your eyebrows too far back declares Hedda Hopper, the resultant space is apt to make your nose look thick.

Ann Miller says that if you can follow a rigid good-looks schedule, try dancing every time you get a chance. She insists it will do wonders for you.

Gives Feet Good Care.

Ginger Rogers believes in giving the feet the best attention and having a pedicure regularly. You can give them to yourself at home, or have professional treatments. She advises using a cuticle remover, and applying cuticle oil freely. She has her toenails filed slightly rounded.

To make your hair seem lighter, Lucille Ball advises the use of darker makeup, a powder that is slightly darker than your own skin tone.

The length of the fingernails should be determined by a person's occupation, declares Lily Pons. If you are a working girl, a pianist, or do anything where the fingers are constantly used, your nails should be fairly short. "Leave the long nails to the girls whose hands are generally idle or not in use," suggests the coloratura.

According to Joan Fontaine the best assurance for a healthy-looking skin is a thorough washing morning and night. If you feel you must use a cleansing cream, she advises it after the washing.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My fear of Mary's reaction to my going to the farm even for a day was justified. When I turned from the telephone, she was standing in the middle of the floor, her hands clenched into fists against her heart, her face filled with dismay.

"I couldn't help but hear you," she said. "I suppose you must go, but—how long are you going to stay, and what shall I do while you are gone?"

"I must go, yes," I returned, slowly, "but as I'm not going to start until quite late in the afternoon, and shall return early day after tomorrow, we shall miss only a day and a little over from our drill. I'll put you through an unusually heavy program for the rest of the day and begin again day after tomorrow. I think you need the day's rest anyway. I'm afraid you're getting a bit overtrained."

"I don't need a minute's rest," Mary began rebelliously, but support for me came from an unexpected source.

Nurse Gives Warning.

As long as you've said it first, Mrs. Graham," Miss Whitlock declared sturdily from the open door into her room, "I want to say that if Mrs. Veritzen doesn't want to break down completely, she must take more rest than she has been. I've been watching her closely—oh! no, you didn't know it," she answered Mary's start of surprise with a smile. "But I'm telling you now that a day's rest, with some physical exercise, say a brisk walk in Central park, or along the river front, taking a taxi up and back, so you don't have the dust and confusion of the city streets, will do wonders for you—and in all probability save you from a breakdown. I'll stake my professional reputation on that opinion."

Mary's face showed reluctant belief of the nurse's dictum.

"Oh! all right!" she said. "I'll do whatever you tell me. And I suppose you're right. I didn't realize how tired I was until this minute. I feel as if I could sleep for a week."

"Then off you go to bed this minute," I told her, but Mary's face suddenly brightened.

"I'll go in a minute, gladly," she said. "But I've thought of something."

She turned to Miss Whitlock.

"Would you call dancing physical exercise?" she asked.

Dance In Play.

"It depends upon where and when," the nurse answered cautiously. "If you mean dancing at a party or cafe, where you're bound to find dust, liquor and excitement, I say no; it would do you more harm than good."

"But I don't mean that at all," Mary retorted. "I'm not apt to go dancing in any cafe while Noel isn't here to go with me. What I mean is practicing a dance here in the hotel room with the windows opened wide."

"That, of course, would be physical exercise of the very best sort," Miss Whitlock decided promptly.

"Then," Mary said jubilantly, "I'm all for the day off. You perhaps recall, Auntie Made, that in one place in that role, a short dance from me is indicated. But darling Papa Veritzen said he was undecided about it, and would let me know later if I should put it in. He told me extravagantly that I was so good a dancer I wouldn't need to practice the dance much, and that there would be plenty of time for me to brush up on it if he did decide to incorporate it in the role.

"I can see now he never intended to put it in," she went on a bit ruefully, "but I think I'll fool him on that, too. I'll just spend tomorrow perfecting that dance, and then I'll go over it a bit every day until we spring it on him. I won't need anybody as a dancing coach," she concluded with what would have sounded like egotism, if I had not known her extraordinary skill as a dancer, and her own sureness of knowledge as to her ability.

She whirled on me with an apology and a question.

"Forgive me, Auntie Madge!" she pleaded prettily. "I'm deciding things without authority. What do you think of my plan?"

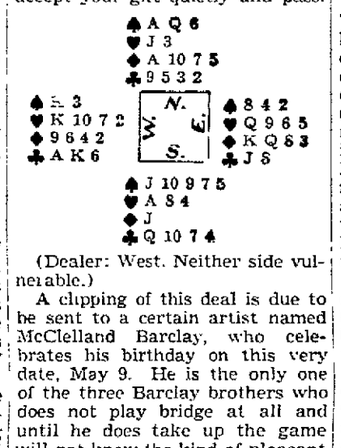
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

ACCEPT ALL PRESENTS

There is one kind of birthday present which the non-bridge player never can enjoy. That is the thrill which comes when you are about to raise your partner's bid but are interrupted by an optimistic opponent doubling him. If you know that the opponents have some kind of "out," do not redouble and scare them into a contract which is bad for your side. Merely accept your gift quietly and pass.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

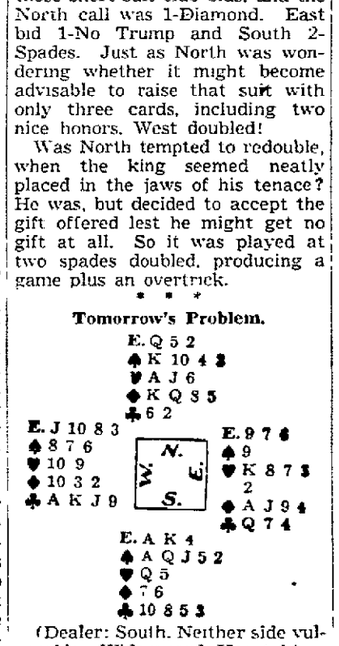
A clipping of this deal is due to be sent to a certain artist named McClelland Barclay, who celebrates his birthday on this very date, May 9. He is the only one of the three Barclay brothers who does not play bridge at all and until he does take up the game will not know the kind of pleasant surprise received by the holder of the North cards.

West had opened with one of those short suit club bids, and the North call was 1-Diamond. East bid 1-No Trump and South 2-Spades. Just as North was wondering whether it might become advisable to raise that suit with only three cards, including two nice honors, West doubled!

Was North tempted to redouble, when the king seemed neatly placed in the jaws of his tenace? He was, but decided to accept the gift offered lest he might get no gift at all. So it was played at two spades doubled, producing a game plus an overtrick.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable. Widow card: Heart 4.)

At Five-Suit Bridge, with the club K led against your 5-Spades contract, would you place the widow card in your hand or dummy, and what would you discard?

My Neighbor Says:

If you have your strawberry plants mulched over, watch carefully and remove the mulch when the color of the center leaves begins to fade to a yellowish green. When they do that, you know that the plants are growing.

Wooden kitchen utensils should be washed in warm water to which a small quantity of soap or soap flakes has been added. Dry thoroughly as soon as they are washed. If allowed to soak or left to stand about while wet the wood will become discolored.

To restore the color to a faded rug, add to a bowl of hot water a few drops of ammonia and sponge the rug, treating a small portion at a time. Dry thoroughly by rubbing with a clean duster.

To remove wallpaper from plastered walls first wet the paper thoroughly with a sponge dipped in soap suds, then loosen it with a putty knife.

Directing Children Today's Topic

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Understanding children as you so evidently do, will not tell me how I can prevent hurting the feelings of my young son, and at the same time prevent his making the same mistake next time—should there be a next time? He is only nine, and several weeks ago on my birthday, proudly handed me a box of writing paper which he had had personally marked for me. The paper is marked all wrong. That is, it has my full name Mary Jones Brown and complete address. I wouldn't want to hurt him for anything, and yet . . . ! Here is where I need your advice.

Answer: I agree with you—I wouldn't hurt his feelings for anything. If I were you I would use the paper gradually in writing to my immediate family, although I wouldn't tell him that I think the marking is perfect. But you can tell him you loved his getting it for you. By and by, before this is used up if there is any chance that he might get you more like it, you might perhaps be able casually to show him some paper that you do like and ask him if he doesn't like it too. In other words, impress upon his mind some other picture of some other marking, but never tell him that you don't like his. Probably you will keep a few pieces of this paper partly because you want him to see that you still have some left and are not in need of any more, and partly just for sentiment's sake. I think nearly all people who love children have had something given to them by the children that they treasure for that reason alone.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct, under any circumstances, for a child to address his or her elders by their first names?

Answer: In this sense "correct" is not a very suitable word since I suppose it must be agreed that that which is permitted by representative people can not very well be branded as incorrect. Moreover, there are times when it sounds quite all right for children to call grown people by their first names. There are other times when it sounds altogether wrong, and there are many times when it is shocking. Therefore, which these times are must be determined by, first of all, the permission of the grown people, and secondly, and to great extent, the affection and camaraderie which exists between the children and these same people. Why it is sometimes shocking and sometimes not would be very hard to explain. At all events, I can say very positively that general calling of older people by their first names is not in good taste. No children should ever be permitted to do so unless the older people themselves tell the children that they may—and you know they mean it.

There are several desirable annuals for ornamental planting that do not grow to a foot in height. Among these are ageratum, lobelia, dwarf nasturtium, pansy, portulaca, sweet alyssum, tagetes, forget-me-not, and verbena, while the coxcomb has dwarf varieties less than a foot in height.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 10.

The planetary configurations dominating this day are rather conflicting. A serious, studious and perplexed mood may prevail on this day and may attract the notice and substantial support of elders, but there are several signs of things working at cross-purposes, with difficulties, delays and disappointments. However, these are not of major importance.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which some problems may come up for serious thought and wise adjustment. In meeting delays, postponements or anxiety, it is advisable to seek the advice and support of elders, trusted friends or relatives, all of whom should be sympathetic and trustworthy. Personal affiliations should be happy, but secret things may call for adjustment.

A child born on this day may be studious, profound and inclined to the serious things of life, with tendencies to aloofness or solitude, although not lacking in affection or kindliness. It may win support of elders and superiors.

If, when making coffee, you run short of milk, a good substitute is to beat up an egg and put a little in each cup with a little milk. You will find this greatly improves the coffee.

If you like the flavor of cloves, try adding a few whole ones to the fat in which doughnuts are fried.
